STRIKE ABOUT ENDED.

Ratchford Will Tell Miners to Take 65 Cents.

SAYS PITTSBURG MEN WILL ACCEPT

A Convention of Miners Called For Sept. 8, at Columbus, to Consider the Recommendation—Rate to Last Until the End of the Year.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 4.—The end of the great miners' strike is in sight. The national executive board of the United Mine Workers has agreed to recommend to the miners a proposition from the Pittsburgh operators for a straight price of 65 cents a ton to continue in force until the end of the year. A delegate convention of all miners who have suspended work has been called to meet in Columbus, Sept. 8, at 10 a. m., to act upon the recommendation. President Ratchford and the other members of the board say there is not the slightest doubt but that the miners will approve the recommendation. The proposition does not involve arbitration and in effect provides for an immediate settlement of the strike. President Ratchford said that there were special reasons for the board recommending the proposition. In the first place it concedes the miners a material advance. Had a 69-cent rate been secured he was confident it could not have been maintained for more than 70 days. The proposition does away with all the uncertainties of arbitration and will bring the strike to a speedy termination. As soon as the miners ratify the proposition work will be resumed in all the mines. In the second place the proposition provides for a revival of the joint conferences for an adjustment of prices. The operators are pledged to meet with the miners prior to the termination of the agreement, and determine the rate of mining for the next year. Both the members of the miners' executive board and the operators' committee are pleased over the outcome of the conference and feel that public sentiment will sustain their action.

The operators' committee renewed their first proposition for a 64-cent rate pending arbitration. This was again rejected by the miners' board. Then the operators' committee got together and submitted a new proposition for a straight price of 65 cents, and after long discussion it was accepted by the miners' board subject to the approval of the miners at large.

The following circular was issued by the national executive board:

"To the mineworkers who have suspended work in the different states: You are hereby notified that a convention will be held at Columbus at 10 o'clock a. m., on Wednesday, Sept. 8, 1897.

"Greeting: At a conference held at Columbus on Sept. 2 and 3, between the national executive board and district presidents of the United Mine Workers of America and a representative committee of the Pittsburgh district operators, whom we consented to meet only after it became apparent that a national conference of operators and miners could not be convened.

"The following propositions were submitted by the representatives of the Pittsburgh operators to the executive board and district presidents as the basis of settlement to determine the present strike:

"First—The resumption of work at a 64-cent rate of mining. The submitting of the question to a board of arbitration to determine what the price shall be, the maximum to be 69 cents and the minimum to be 60 cents a ton, the price to be effective from date of resuming work.

"Second—A straight price of 65 cents a ton, to continue in force until the end of the year, with the additional mutual understanding that a joint meeting of operators and miners shall be held in December, 1897, for the purpose of determining what the rate of mining shall be thereafter.

"Your executive board and district presidents, after much deliberation and a thorough consideration of the two propositions, do recommend the latter, as in their judgment the best that can be secured, because of circumstances that are apparent to all who study market conditions since the inauguration of the strike.

"You, however, are the court of final adjudication, and must decide for yourselves what your actions shall be and when work shall be resumed.

"Additional reasons will be given and a full report made of the general situation at the convention. We would further advise that delegates come untrammelled by resolutions and unstructured, other than to act in your best interest.

At this time it is deemed advisable for the reason that provisions are made in the uniformity agreement now pending in the Pittsburgh district, and which it is expected will be operative in that district on and after Jan. 1, 1898, to arbitrate the question of relative differential between pick and machine mining, which will, we anticipate, do much toward furnishing us with more reliable data on that question than we possess at present and to that extent will be beneficial to us in settling questions as between machine and pick mining.

"Signed by members of the national executive board and district presidents. "Fred Ditcher, R. L. Davis, J. H. Kennedy, Henry Stephenson, Patrick Dolan, members of the national executive board.

"W. E. Farms, W. G. Knight, Patrick Dolan, district presidents.

"M. D. Ratchford, president national executive board.

"W. C. Pearce, secretary national executive board."

The state board of arbitration of Ohio, which has been in communication with the committee of operators and miners' union officials during their conferences, being asked for an expression about the settlement, gave this statement:

"The settlement is a most fortunate termination of the strike. There has been no question in any quarter that miners' wages should be increased. The only question was how much? Considering the difficulties in the way on both sides in regard to the adjustment, whichever proposition be accepted, as a very fair and reasonable one. It reflects great credit upon both parties.

"The operators went more than half way and sacrificed not a little, but this is done generously and ungrudgingly, with the purpose of securing to their employees a living wage, and their action is appreciated and met in a spirit of kindness and fair dealing. We regard it as a foregone conclusion that the settlement will be formally ratified on Wednesday next, and see no reason why work may not be resumed at once. A half week's work will thus be saved and a large sum of much needed money earned. There should be no further time lost."

GOMPERS' STRONG TALK.

Does Not Approve of Certain People Attending St. Louis Conference.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Mr. Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, when asked why he and other trade unionists did not attend the convention held in St. Louis, said: "In regard to the convention held at St. Louis, I have been placed in a most peculiar position. The call for the convention contained my name as officially endorsing it. This was certainly a mistake in the first instance. It was placed there by Mr. Ratchford, under the impression that knowing my intense sympathy with the miners in their just struggle, that I would go to any lengths in order to help them to success; but my name was placed there and the official endorsement given to it without my knowledge or consent.

"As you will see, the call was issued to organized labor, its various divisions and sub-divisions, and to all reform, social, educational and scientific bodies, who condemn government by injunction. Under this call any body of men who are opposed to government by injunction would be entitled to a seat in the convention. In other words persons entirely remote from and having no connection with the labor movement could have been in attendance and by overwhelming numbers direct the course, mapped out the policy and dominated the trade union movement. As president of the American Federation of Labor, a responsible officer in the trade union movement, I would not dare hazard the interests of our fellow workers at the hands of persons who might be entirely irresponsible. There are numbers of people who are opposed to government by injunction and who are yet hostile to the clear cut and well defined purposes of the trade union movement.

"I shall say nothing in criticism of the action of the St. Louis convention, and I did not say anything earlier because I did not wish to interfere with the program it had mapped out, not even its appeal for a contribution of a day's wages, and I am glad that what I now say will not appear until after the result of this appeal has been acted upon.

"As in the beginning I stand ready today to follow Mr. Ratchford's lead in this strike in everything except to place the destinies of our movement in the hands of persons representing 'reform, social, educational and scientific,' or other bodies, who are simply agreed in their opposition to government by injunction. We ask the assistance of all to attain that end, but cannot permit either domination of our movement nor the direction of its policy with the possibility of diverting it into irrational and improper channels."

Orders Issued by a County Court in West Virginia.

WHEELING, Sept. 4.—Another injunction has been served on J. W. Rea, James Wood and 73 others named and an unlimited number of unnamed and unknown people prohibiting them from holding meetings or marching near the property of the Worthington Coal and Coke company. This injunction was issued by Judge J. H. Hagans, the regular judge of the Marion county circuit court.

Among those named in the instrument is Rev. W. H. Wiley, who has been holding religious services in the strikers' camps on Sundays and prayer meetings through the week. He has never failed to pray for the operators and ex-Governor Fleming at any of these services. Wiley is the regular pastor of the Methodist church. Reports from Kanawha show further gains for the strikers, while in the Norfolk and Western region they have made substantial gains.

HAS GONE TO CANTON.

The President Left Columbus This Morning.

RUMOR OF THREAT TO KILL HIM.

A Columbus Newspaper Printed an Anonymous Letter—Between 75,000 and 100,000 People Greeted the President at State Fair.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 4.—The presidential party left this city today for Canton.

An unpleasant feature of the president's visit to the city was a report, which gained currency through the publication of an anonymous letter, to the effect that the president was in bodily danger, because of the appointment of Immigration Commissioner Powderly and that extraordinary precautions would be taken to guard Major McKinley. The mayor and the director of public safety regard the communication as a hoax and both state that it was never considered seriously. General Alger declared the publication of the letter was an outrage.

President McKinley and party were preceded here by Hon. James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, who rejoined them in this city. With the president came Mrs. McKinley, Senator and Mrs. Hanna, Secretary and Mrs. Alger, Col. and Mrs. Myron Herrick, Webb C. Hayes and other personal friends.

Upon arrival the committee on reception, appointed by the board of agriculture, escorted the president between lines of police to carriages. The crowd in the vicinity of the station was immense, the weather being fine and the attendance at the fair very large. Colonel John S. Poland, in command of the Seventeenth United States infantry, and Colonel Coit, in command of the Fourteenth regiment and Battery H and Company B, Ninth regiment, Ohio national guard, received the president. He was then escorted, the city police leading the way, to the great Southern hotel, where lunch was served.

The president and party then took carriages for the fair, overtaking the military, which had gone ahead 'to rest in the shade,' as desired by the president, until he came to them at a point near the entrance. The Seventeenth regiment, U. S. A., joined the Fourteenth regiment, O. N. G., as escort.

Marching into the large fair ground the procession moved through a sea of human beings to the main building, where the president addressed school children from Columbus and many parts of the state, all of whom had been especially invited by card and admitted free. Between 75,000 and 100,000 people were present.

The president expressed himself as being especially pleased to meet the children. Later in the day the party was escorted to various buildings of interest, where short speeches were made and informal receptions given. The president was interested in the cottage in which Grant was born. It is enclosed in a building owned by and is the property of the farmers of Ohio, being permanently located on the fair ground.

After visiting the Grant cottage the president held an informal levee in the office of Secretary Miller. There was great cheering when the president and his party appeared on the balcony at the east side of the main exposition building. The balcony was beautifully decorated. It was an impressive sight that greeted the president as the vast crowd was spread out over several acres. After the applause which greeted the president subsided, the Fourteenth regiment band played "America" and the vast audience took up the familiar strain, making a great chorus. Secretary Miller of the state board of agriculture introduced the president, who made a brief speech.

At the conclusion of the president's speech he was the recipient of an ovation from the school children and assembled multitude. Brief speeches were also made by Secretary Alger and Senator Hanna.

After driving over the grounds the presidential party returned to the hotel. In the evening a complimentary dinner was given by the state board of agriculture to President McKinley and a brief informal reception followed.

He said: "My fellow citizens, I feel that it is almost a hopeless task to undertake to make myself heard by this great assemblage of my fellow citizens. It is peculiarly gratifying to me, after more than 18 months of absence from the capital city of my state, to return to these beautiful agricultural grounds to meet my old friends and my fellow citizens, with whom, for so many years, I have been associated in the past. If I had been asked to select a greeting most agreeable to myself, it would be that greeting which the committee has prepared of the children of the schools of the state assembled on these grounds today. [Applause.]

"The presence of 40,000 school children commands our affection and inspires our hopes; and I congratulate the children of Ohio that they enjoy exceptional opportunities for education at the hands of the government of the state. No other state has higher common school advantages than the state of Ohio. And it is gratifying to know that 500,000 children every day in our state crowd the doorsteps of our public schools in thirst for knowledge to fit them for the state and responsible duties of life. There is one thing of which the United States can proudly boast, and that is our great public school system, where the boys and girls from every walk of life assemble in full equality and enjoy equally with all their fellows all of the advantages of public instruction. I congratulate you all for that.

"I am glad to meet these children here today. Children's day it is to you today, but in a little while it will be citizens' day with you all. Upon you in a little while will rest the duty as well as the responsibility of carrying on the great political fabric established by your fathers and bearing the glorious old banner they have so proudly borne in the past. [Great applause.] God bless the school children of Ohio, God bless the school children of America and guide them to intelligence and virtue and morality and patriotism, and with these elements dominating our citizenship our institutions are safe and our republic may be glorious forever. I thank you and bid you all good afternoon. [Great applause.]

Un-ventful Miners' Meeting.

DUBOIS, Pa., Sept. 4.—The striking miners' meeting here was uneventful and for one day neither operators nor miners have made any important move. FAILURES NOT SO BIG.

Lowest Known Average In July and August, Says Dun.

BUSIEST AUGUST EVER RECORDED.

The Demand For Wheat In Europe Will Be Greater Than This Country Can Supply—Mills Buying More Wool. Bessemer Rises at Pittsburg.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—R. G. Dun & Co. in their Weekly Review of Trade issued today, say: Failures in August were in number not 17 per cent less than in August, 1896, but in amount of liabilities 70.8 per cent smaller. July and August show a lower average of liabilities per failure than has ever been known in any year or even in a quarter of the 23 years R. G. Dun & Co. have kept quarterly records. The improvement is also well distributed, extending to nearly every important branch of business, but in clothing, jewelry and unclassified trading only two months of the past 47 have shown smaller failures, in general stores and furniture only three, in groceries, hats and iron manufacture only four, in chemical manufactures only five and in clothing manufacture only six months of the 47. The ratio of defaulted liabilities to payments at clearing houses has been smaller in July and August than in any other month since early in 1893.

August was the first month in which the daily average of settlements through clearing houses exceeded materially that of the corresponding month of 1892, the excess at the principal cities being 12.3 per cent, nor is this due, as might be supposed, to the activity in stock speculation, for the Stock Exchange clearing house now disposes of a very large share of transactions, so that they affect bank exchanges far less than five years ago. The volume of business here has been distinctly larger in other than speculative lines than it was then, and in textile goods, phenomenally larger, though slackening this week, buyers having nearly completed their initial purchases. With an extraordinary movement in grain, heavy real estate and building transactions and increased business in iron products, the month was clearly the busiest August ever known.

Wheat continued its reaction until it had fallen 4 cents more, but then rose 3 cents with the final revival of foreign buying. Western receipts are very large, though not quite as large as a year ago, but Atlantic exports, flour included, rose to 5,534,758 bushels for the week, against 2,175,453 bushels last year. The estimates which command confidence still indicate a yield of 550,000,000 to 580,000,000 bushels, winter wheat turning out so much beyond expectations as to balance much of the loss in spring wheat. Foreign accounts do not improve, and unless much more deceptive than usual, the demand for American wheat will far exceed the quantity which can be spared. Continued large exports of corn, and buying for export, show still more clearly the extent of deficiencies abroad. Western receipts for the week were 10,065,470 bushels, against 3,160,318 bushels last year, and such a movement at this season implies a great export demand not yet reflected in outgo.

Wool sells largely between speculators, 16,568,500 pounds for the week. Mills have been buying more freely to replace the wool rapidly consumed and the goods market has been so large and strong that they are encouraged to purchase even after a rise of 50 per cent in a year. Great quantities are held by dealers at the west above prices yet paid in seaboard markets.

The improvement in the iron and steel industry gains momentum, and a further advance in prices makes 4.5 per cent from the lowest average, Aug. 12. The demand increases for sheets and plates, especially for bridge and ship building, including 10,000 tons at Philadelphia, in structural work, of which it is said that 20,000 tons have been placed at Chicago, in bars and especially in wire and wire nails, and all have advanced an average of $1 per ton. Southern and western dealers have united to advance prices of pig 25 cents.

Bessemer at Pittsburg has risen 10 cents and eastern markets are stronger. The demand for cars is pressing and work for railways increases. The first shipment of steel rails from this country to Australia was 2,000 tons by the Lackawanna company. Tin is slightly lower at 13.65 cents, but heavy exports, said to cover 15,000,000 pounds for the next three months, sustain copper at 11 1/4, and lead is strong at 4.10. Boot and shoe shipments, not quite 5 per cent smaller than last year in August, nor 4 per cent smaller than 1895, were 7 1/2 per cent smaller than 1894, but were a little larger than in 1892. Buying is mostly for immediate needs, but is sufficient to keep the works well employed.

Failures for the week have been 191 in the United States, against 334 last year, and 25 in Canada, against 31 last year.

The Weather.

Fair; warmer; light easterly winds, increasing and shifting to southeasterly.

Ratchford Will Tell Miners to Take 65 Cents.

SAYS PITTSBURG MEN WILL ACCEPT

A Convention of Miners Called For Sept. 8, at Columbus, to Consider the Recommendation—Rate to Last Until the End of the Year.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 4.—The end of the great miners' strike is in sight. The national executive board of the United Mine Workers has agreed to recommend to the miners a proposition from the Pittsburgh operators for a straight price of 65 cents a ton to continue in force until the end of the year. A delegate convention of all miners who have suspended work has been called to meet in Columbus, Sept. 8, at 10 a. m., to act upon the recommendation. President Ratchford and the other members of the board say there is not the slightest doubt but that the miners will approve the recommendation. The proposition does not involve arbitration and in effect provides for an immediate settlement of the strike. President Ratchford said that there were special reasons for the board recommending the proposition. In the first place it concedes the miners a material advance. Had a 69-cent rate been secured he was confident it could not have been maintained for more than 70 days. The proposition does away with all the uncertainties of arbitration and will bring the strike to a speedy termination. As soon as the miners ratify the proposition work will be resumed in all the mines. In the second place the proposition provides for a revival of the joint conferences for an adjustment of prices. The operators are pledged to meet with the miners prior to the termination of the agreement, and determine the rate of mining for the next year. Both the members of the miners' executive board and the operators committee are pleased over the outcome of the conference and feel that public sentiment will sustain their action.

The operators' committee renewed their first proposition for a 64-cent rate pending arbitration. This was again rejected by the miners' board. Then the operators' committee got together and submitted a new proposition for a straight price of 65 cents, and after long discussion it was accepted by the miners' board subject to the approval of the miners at large.

The following circular was issued by the national executive board:

"To the mineworkers who have suspended work in the different states: You are hereby notified that a convention will be held at Columbus at 10 o'clock a. m., on Wednesday, Sept. 8, 1897.

"(Greeting: At a conference held at Columbus on Sept. 2 and 3, between the national executive board and district presidents of the United Mine Workers of America and a representative committee of the Pittsburgh district operators, whom we consented to meet only after it became apparent that a national conference of operators and miners could not be convened.

"The following propositions were submitted by the representatives of the Pittsburgh operators to the executive board and district presidents as the basis of settlement to determine the present strike:

"First—The resumption of work at a 64-cent rate of mining. The submitting of the question to a board of arbitration to determine what the price shall be, the maximum to be 69 cents and the minimum to be 60 cents a ton, the price to be effective from date of resuming work.

"Second—A straight price of 65 cents a ton, to continue in force until the end of the year, with the additional mutual understanding that a joint meeting of operators and miners shall be held in December, 1897, for the purpose of determining what the rate of mining shall be thereafter.

"W. E. Farms, W. G. Knight, Patrick Dolan, district presidents. "M. D. Ratchford, president national executive board.

"W. C. Pearce, secretary national executive board."

The state board of arbitration of Ohio, which has been in communication with the committee of operators and miners' union officials during their conferences, being asked for an expression about the settlement, gave this statement:

"The settlement is a most fortunate termination of the strike. There has been no question in any quarter that miners' wages should be increased. The only question was how much? He was then escorted, the city police leading the way, to the great Southern hotel, where lunch was served.

The president and party then took carriages for the fair, overtaking the military, which had gone ahead "to rest in the shade," as desired by the president, until he came to them at a point near the entrance. The Seventeenth regiment, U. S. A., joined the Fourteenth regiment, O. N. G., as escort.

Marching into the large fair ground the procession moved through a sea of human beings to the main building, where the president addressed school children from Columbus and many parts of the state, all of whom had been especially invited by card and admitted free. Between 75,000 and 100,000 people were present.

The president expressed himself as being especially pleased to meet the children. Later in the day the party was escorted to various buildings of interest, where short speeches were made and informal receptions given. The president was interested in the cottage in which Grant was born. It is enclosed in a building owned by and is the property of the farmers of Ohio, being permanently located on the fair ground.

After visiting the Grant cottage the president held an informal levee in the office of Secretary Miller. There was great cheering when the president and his party appeared on the balcony at the east side of the main exposition building. The balcony was beautifully decorated. It was an impressive sight that greeted the president as the vast crowd was spread out over several acres. After the applause which greeted the president subsided, the Fourteenth regiment band played "America" and the vast audience took up the familiar strain, making a great chorus. Secretary Miller of the state board of agriculture introduced the president, who made a brief speech.

At the conclusion of the president's speech he was the recipient of an ovation from the school children and assembled multitude. Brief speeches were also made by Secretary Alger and Senator Hanna.

After driving over the grounds the presidential party returned to the hotel. In the evening a complimentary dinner was given by the state board of agriculture to President McKinley and a brief informal reception followed.

He said: "My fellow citizens, I feel that it is almost a hopeless task to undertake to make myself heard by this great assemblage of my fellow citizens. It is peculiarly gratifying to me, after more than 18 months of absence from the capital city of my state, to return to these beautiful agricultural grounds to meet my old friends and my fellow citizens, with whom, for so many years, I have been associated in the past. If I had been asked to select a greeting most agreeable to myself, it would be that greeting which the committee has prepared for the children of the schools of the state assembled on these grounds today. [Applause.]

"The presence of 40,000 school children commands our affection and inspires our hopes; and I congratulate the children of Ohio that they enjoy exceptional opportunities for education at the hands of the government of the state. No other state has higher common school advantages than the state of Ohio. And it is gratifying to know that 500,000 children every day in our state crowd the doorsteps of our public schools in thirst for knowledge to fit them for the grave and responsible duties of life. There is one thing of which the United States can proudly boast, and that is our great public school system, where the boys and girls from every walk of life assemble in full equality and enjoy equally with all their fellows all of the advantages of public instruction. I congratulate you all for that.

"I am glad to meet these children here today. Children's day it is to you today, but in a little while it will be citizens' day with you all. Upon you in a little while will rest the duty as well as the responsibility of carrying on the great political fabric established by your fathers and bearing the glorious old banner they have so proudly borne in the past. [Great applause.] God bless the school children of Ohio, God bless the school children of America and guide them to intelligence and virtue and morality and patriotism, and with these elements dominating our citizenship our institutions are safe and our republic may be glorious forever. I thank you and bid you all good afternoon. [Great applause.]

Others May Have Perished In a Colorado Mine Explosion.

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Colo., Sept. 4.—A terrible explosion of coal dust has occurred in the old Sunshine mine, owned by the Colorado Fuel and Iron company, 13 miles from Glenwood.

Another Labor Conference Called.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 4.—Pursuant to the action of the recent labor conference held in this city, a call for a convention of all labor and reform organizations, to meet in Chicago on Sept. 27 next, has been issued, "to devise ways and means to restore to the people their inalienable rights, and especially those rights guaranteed under the constitution of the United States and the several state constitutions."

Un-ventful Miners' Meeting.

DUBOIS, Pa., Sept. 4.—The striking miners' meeting here was uneventful and for one day neither operators nor miners have made any important move. Beech Tree, the only mine of the Clearfield company that is working, will not be disturbed by the strikers. It is said to be well worked out and only about 20 cars per day are shipped from that mine.

Arctic Explorers Return.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The British steamer Windward, having on board the Jackson-Harmsworth expedition, which has spent three winters near Cape Flora, Franz Josef land, has arrived here from Franz Josef land with E. G. Jackson and his colleagues. All the members of the expedition are in good health. They saw nothing of Andree.

Girl Chained In a Cellar.

WASHINGTON, Ind., Sept. 4.—James Sturgeon notified the police that because his 15-year-old daughter had run away from home his father, as soon as she returned, fastened her to the floor of his cellar with a heavy hog chain. The police found the girl locked up in a damp cellar, but she was not chained.

Carpenters Gone to Alaska.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Seven men, most of them skilled carpenters, have left for the Alaska gold fields under the leadership of Captain Barber. The men will build a hotel at St. Michaels for the shelter of miners during the coming winter. The North American Trading and Transportation company sent them.

Dingley Explains Section 23.

LEWISTON, Me., Sept. 4.—According to the Lewiston Evening Journal, Hon. Nelson Dingley's paper, the originators of section 23 of the tariff law did not intend it to affect the bonding privilege under which foreign merchandise can be shipped and forwarded through Canada.

Number of Soldiers Killed.

WEIMAR, Sept. 4.—During the military maneuvers in this vicinity a pontoon bridge collapsed while the Ninety-fourth Thüringian regiment of infantry was passing over it. A number of soldiers and some of the trumpeters were either drowned or hit by timbers of the bridge and killed.

Half the Strikers Women.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Vestmakers to the number of 5,000 have gone on strike for higher wages. The strikers are affiliated with the Hebrew Trades and Socialistic Labor alliance of this city and vicinity. Half of the strikers are women.

FAILURES NOT SO BIG.

Lowest Known Average In July and August, Says Dun.

BUSIEST AUGUST EVER RECORDED.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—R. G. Dun & Co. in their Weekly Review of Trade issued today, say: Failures in August were in number not 17 per cent less than in August, 1896, but in amount of liabilities 70.8 per cent smaller. July and August show a lower average of liabilities per failure than has ever been known in any year or even in a quarter of the 23 years R. G. Dun & Co. have kept quarterly records. The improvement is also well distributed, extending to nearly every important branch of business, but in clothing, jewelry and unclassified trading only two months of the past 47 have shown smaller failures, in general stores and furniture only three, in groceries, hats and iron manufacture only four, in chemical manufactures only five and in clothing manufacture only six months of the 47. The ratio of defaulted liabilities to payments at clearing houses has been smaller in July and August than in any other month since early in 1893.

August was the first month in which the daily average of settlements through clearing houses exceeded materially that of the corresponding month of 1892, the excess at the principal cities being 12.3 per cent, nor is this due, as might be supposed, to the activity in stock speculation, for the Stock Exchange clearing house now disposes of a very large share of transactions, so that they affect bank exchanges far less than five years ago. The volume of business here has been distinctly larger in other than speculative lines than it was then, and in textile goods, phenomenally larger, though slackening this week, buyers having nearly completed their initial purchases. With an extraordinary movement in grain, heavy real estate and building transactions and increased business in iron products, the month was clearly the busiest August ever known.

Wheat continued its reaction until it had fallen 4 cents more, but then rose 3 cents with the final revival of foreign buying. Western receipts are very large, though not quite as large as a year ago, but Atlantic exports, flour included, rose to 5,534,758 bushels for the week, against 2,175,453 bushels last year. The estimates which command confidence still indicate a yield of 550,000,000 to 580,000,000 bushels, winter wheat turning out so much beyond expectations as to balance much of the loss in spring wheat. Foreign accounts do not improve, and unless much more deceptive than usual, the demand for American wheat will far exceed the quantity which can be spared. Continued large exports of corn, and buying for export, show still more clearly the extent of deficiencies abroad. Western receipts for the week were 10,665,470 bushels, against 3,160,318 bushels last year, and such a movement at this season implies a great export demand not yet reflected in outgo.

Wool sells largely between speculators, 16,568,500 pounds for the week. Mills have been buying more freely to replace the wool rapidly consumed and the goods market has been so large and strong that they are encouraged to purchase even after a rise of 50 per cent in a year. Great quantities are held by dealers at the west above prices yet paid in seaboard markets.

The improvement in the iron and steel industry gains momentum, and a further advance in prices makes 4.5 per cent from the lowest average, Aug. 12. The demand increases for sheets and plates, especially for bridge and ship building, including 10,000 tons at Philadelphia, in structural work of which it is said that 20,000 tons have been placed at Chicago, in bars and especially in wire and wire nails, and all have advanced an average of $1 per ton. Southern and western dealers have united to advance prices of pig 25 cents.

Bessemer at Pittsburg has risen 10 cents and eastern markets are stronger. The demand for cars is pressing and work for railways increases. The first shipment of steel rails from this country to Australia was 2,000 tons by the Lackawanna company. Tin is slightly lower at 13.65 cents, but heavy exports, said to cover 15,000,000 pounds for the next three months, sustain copper at 11 1/4, and lead is strong at 4.10. Boot and shoe shipments, not quite 5 per cent smaller than last year in August, nor 4 per cent smaller than 1895, were 7 1/2 per cent smaller than 1894, but were a little larger than in 1892. Buying is mostly for immediate needs, but is sufficient to keep the works well employed.

Failures for the week have been 191 in the United States, against 334 last year, and 25 in Canada, against 31 last year.

The Weather.

Fair; warmer; light easterly winds, increasing and shifting to southeasterly.

CAREY DOES VERY WELL

But His Batting Record Was Lowered.

NEW THINGS ABOUT MERCER

Sporting Writers Pay Him Much Attention, and Always Have a Good Word For Him—Wellsville and Liverpool at West End Park Today.

George Carey this week did not keep up his phenomenal batting record, and in 11 games, out of 41 times at bat, he made 15 hits for a total of 17 bases. He had 80 putouts, 5 assists, 1 error and 1 stolen base. In two of the games he covered left garden without an error.

Alf Shaw caught two games this week for the Syracuse team, and in eight times at bat made one hit. He had eight putouts, two assists, one error, and one passed ball.

Winnie Mercer has so far won 15 games and lost 19.

The Sporting Life says: "Mercer has a delivery very much like that of John Clarkson. His high slow ball is very coaxing, and he is continually finding fault with umpires who fail to concede all he asks for."

"Win Mercer is still coaching Cy Swain. Another year ought to make the lanky gentleman a crackerjack."

"Ohio is well represented in Washington in point of pitching material. Winnie Mercer, the star twirler of the Senators, Cy Swain and Roger Bresnahan are Buckeyes."

"Catcher McGuire, who has handled the delivery of Mercer since he was initiated into league company, is now catching the young twirlers and Farrell is acting as a backstop for Mercer and McJames."

Frank Booth, who last season played right half for the Bethany team, has written to the city asking for a place on the Monarch eleven. He is a good man and would strengthen the home team.

The East Liverpool and Wellsville teams are playing ball this afternoon at West End park, and a large crowd is in attendance.

WANTS US TO ACT.

East Palestine Is After the Improved Road.

The Palestine Reveille of this week says:

"Some time ago we spoke of the necessity of having a better road between this place and East Liverpool, or rather that part of the road between the George Mackall homestead and the point where the old road intersects the new one. The new road—a miserable one at best—is well-nigh impassable. It would be folly for the county commissioners to spend any more money upon it, as it will continue to be dangerous, and very expensive to keep in repair."

"The old road could easily be put in excellent condition from the iron bridge across Little Beaver near George Mackall's residence, to where it crosses the creek. By continuing the road along the east bank of Little Beaver, to a point near the residence of James Campbell, and there building a bridge across the creek, the steep hill near the ford could be avoided, and a good road built which would be both substantial and permanent. The amount of travel over the entire route would warrant the county commissioners in making the necessary improvements, even if it requires a new bridge. The citizens along the route should petition the commissioners asking them to provide a good safe, highway. There will be no trouble in having such a petition signed in East Liverpool and East Palestine. East Liverpool folks are equally interested in the matter and should act at once."

Coming and Going.

The household goods of W. F. Robinson arrived in this city yesterday afternoon from Allegheny. During the week five families have left the city, and but two have come in.

Repaired the Cars.

All the street cars have been repaired during the last few days. The company did this to facilitate the handling of the large crowd it expects to carry next Monday to Columbian Park.

By the Basket Full.

This morning on the market train 20 baskets of ware were sent to Pittsburg. This makes a total of 87 baskets for the week.

INVITATION.

All business men and farmers are invited to participate in the parade, Labor day, Sept. 6.

COMMITTEE.

All the news in the NEWS REVIEW.

NOT THE WAY IT WAS.

Things Had Not Changed at All Since He Was Young.

Three young men were sitting together in the rotunda of one of the big hotels. They were discussing the progress of invention.

"It's strange," said one, "how completely old ways of doing things have been superseded. You may talk about its being hard to introduce inventions, but if a scheme is any good it'll be universally adopted nowadays in no time. Why, you'll find even middle aged men who remember when everything in use was different. There's hardly a thing now that's done the same way or by the same appliances as it was when they were young. Why, my uncle can remember the time when every kind of goods was made by hand, and he isn't very old either. It's laughable to hear him tell how they used to get along. Everything, it seems, was done about the slowest and hardest way on earth. People used to think that they were in the world to work, and it didn't make much difference what they were at. I tell you, boys, you don't appreciate what it is to live in these days."

At this juncture a man with entirely gray hair folded his paper preparatory to departing and looked at the crowd near him. One of them, observing him, ventured to ask what he thought about it.

"Pretty nearly right, I guess," he said.

"Now, I suppose," began another, "you can remember when the horse car was the only known method of metropolitan conveyance, when bicycles were a thing to come, when telephones were an experiment, when they didn't make any ice in July, when most of the steel in buildings was in the door locks, when newspapers printed two sheets and thought them heavy, when fountain pens were an undisturbed dream, when aluminium was a theory and when harvesters were beginning to be talked about."

"No," returned the person addressed. "I'd like to agree with you, but I can't do it. The facts are otherwise. When I was a young man, business men used typewriters. A good many were thinking about putting in a phonograph. People who didn't own any bicycles or feel like paying for a cab usually traveled around town in a cable or electric car. Telephones cost 10 cents a try just as they do now, unless you knew somebody you could sponge on. Airships would go up and come down pretty much as they do now. The Sunday papers were so full of ads. that it took till Monday to find anything to read. Smoke consumers were making Chicago a beautiful place to live in."

The gathering was now looking incredulous. Things seemed to need an explanation. So he concluded: "You see, I got this gray hair trying to make a soda water manufactory pay in Kansas. Then a beard will add a few years. I was 27 last March."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Getting Married.

In "His Quest of the Golden Girl" Richard Le Gallienne, in one of his opening chapters says:

"Undoubtedly the nicest way to get married is on the sly, and indeed it is at present becoming quite fashionable. Many young couples of my acquaintance, who have had no other reason for concealing the fact beyond their own whim, have thus slipped off without saying a word to anybody and returned full blown housekeepers, with at home days of their own and everything else like real married people—for, as the old lady said to me, 'You can never be sure of married people nowadays unless you have been at the wedding.'"

The author then further philosophizes as follows:

"I don't know myself what getting married feels like, but it cannot be much more exciting than watching other people getting married. Indeed, I always get something like palpitation of the heart just before the priest utters the final fateful words, 'I declare you man and wife.' Half a second before you were still free. Half a second after you were bound for the term of your natural life. Half a second before you had only to dash the book from the priest's hands and put your hands over his mouth, and though thus giddily swinging on to the brink of the precipice you are saved. Half a second after 'All the king's horses and all the king's men Cannot make you a bachelor again.'"

"It is the knife edge moment betwixt time and eternity."

MY LADY'S SECRET.

My lady always smiled—not much to do, But when the hours and days increase in care, And drowsiness and weariness pursue, When youth and love grow dim in backward view, And life is but to bear and still forbear, Ah, then, her gentle sweetness, undefiled By years of bitterness, shone forth. She smiled.

My lady always smiled, in life and death. Some envied her a life that seemed all smiles, And some cried out or caught a sobbing breath, Self pitying, and God and man reviled, But some, to sorrow's burden reconciled, Were glad the gladness of her face to see Through toil and care and heartless apathy.

But when they laid my lady with the flowers To sleep, where wake a thousand smiling springs, A solitary father, praying hours Beneath grand arch and grave cathedral towers, Thanked, for my lady's rest, the King of kings.

He knew her soul had yearned a weary while To sleep and rest the burden of a smile!

NOW WORTH MILLIONS.

Frank Phiscator Found a Big Fortune In the Klondike.

HORRORS OF ALASKAN WEATHER.

Young Prospector Makes Five Millions of Dollars In Fifteen Months—Perils of the Trip—Death Strews the Way With Skeletons and Menaces the Traveler at Every Step—A Thrilling Story Fresh From the Frozen Northwest.

Frank Phiscator of Baroda, Mich., is back from the Klondike with his pockets full of nuggets, his purse full of drafts and five times a millionaire, and his experiences in the frozen goldfields form the most thrilling and engrossing story that has yet come down from the Yukon country.

Phiscator became a gold king in 15 months. He went west with money he earned sawing wood. He was backed by two strong arms, a brave heart and a constitution as tough as a knot. He ran a race with death over glaciers, crags and passes, through raging rivers, canyons and rapids, into frozen lakes, killing storms, murderous insects and pests, past starvation, along yawning chasms and under avalanches. It is his verdict that a man who stands the venture earns all he gets. He pities the men who have dared to try the trip. He will be surprised if one-quarter of the crowd that has started gets through alive. He expects to find the trail from Dyea to Dawson strewn with dead when he goes again in March.

This man's story sounds like the tales from books of adventure where fact has no place. He told it the other night to some men who were preparing to start for the goldfield. They went home converted.

SUIT FOR THE JOURNEY.

Phiscator looks the sort of a man built for this journey. He is short, stocky and weighs 230 pounds. He has a sharp, clear eye—an eye of a man that would shoot rather than be shot. His upper lip curls up in an expression of recklessness. His hair is jet black. His neck is short. He walks with a swagger, shakes hand with a hard tug, takes his bracers straight, wears the big, white hat of the west. When he talks, he looks squarely at one, and his talk has the ring of rough honesty.

Here is the way he tells his story:

"It was the Klondike or die a year ago in February. The chances were ten to one I would never come home, and in view of the cheerful outlook I came to Baroda and Chicago to say goodbye to my friends and relatives. It seemed a big risk, but I had come to the conclusion to risk all I had as well as my life in one last try for a gold mine. You see, I had had years of roughing it and knew exactly what I wanted to take along. There didn't seem to be any other man who wanted to go with me, so one cold day I stood alone on the Seattle wharf, about the only white man bound to Juneau.

"It is easy to Juneau. The business of the journey begins right at this point, or it did at least with me. I picked up a fellow on the boat who was pretty brave, and we joined forces. There was but little accurate and detailed information about the country, but what little there was I had. It was all a blind chance, so far as I was concerned, barring the fact that some of the books said there was gold in Alaska for the mere finding. It did not take long for me to conclude that the books were all wrong. It looked for about six months that it would be great luck if we got out with only so much as our lives.

"The trip from Juneau to Dyea was made in a small boat. The weather was bad. The waves ran over the little thing, filling it with water almost as fast as all hands could bail it out. This was a mighty hard hundred miles, but it was a patch of roses in comparison with what came a few days later.

The Start For the Goldfields.

"Dyea was nothing but a dock and a few Indian huts. Charles Fifer, a wanderer from Wisconsin, was in the settlement, and when I told him what I was going to do he concluded to take a hand in the game. My baggage contained enough food for two years, tools which would be needed in case we wanted a boat and a miner's outfit. There was but little traffic over the mountain at that time, and the Indians were secured at a reasonable rate to do the packing. We started.

"It went all right for the first two days, the only danger being in crossing ravines and crevices filled with snow. The third day it snowed—snowed as it snows no other place but in Alaska. No one can tell or imagine its terribleness. It is not possible to see your hand at arm's length. There is nothing to do but to get on the lee side of a drift, roll up in blankets and rest on the sleds until the tempest passes. A tent is whipped into shreds in a minute or sent tearing into the canyons. A fire was out of the question, and we ate canned meats that were frozen solid.

"The sides of the mountains and glaciers are so steep that in many places all a stout man can handle is 100 pounds. There are days in which five miles is a good record. The way they do is to take part of the supplies about five miles ahead and leave them on the side of the trail while they go back for the rest. There is not a minute from Dyea to Lake Lindeman when a man is not more likely to die or be killed than he is to get along.

Death on Either Hand.

"We were caught in another snowstorm in the middle of Crater lake. The ice was beginning to break up. It was full of air holes. There was constant danger that we would plunge into one of these if we went ahead, and as great danger that we would be snowed under if we camped. It was almost a face to face proposition with death, and no one, not even an Indian, slept during that night. The next morning the ice began breaking up, and we were constantly dodging big cracks and heaving our sled over heaps.

"Slowly we worked along, not able to use the compass and trusting only to the general information we had from the Indians that we were on the road to reach the Yukon. They did not know anything about the gold mines, and all they did know was that in 30 or 40 days we might possibly get to our destination. It was no glittering prospect, I can tell you, and just as we were pretty well tucked out and beginning to wonder if it was worth while we came across the bodies of two men who had died by the wayside.

"We met some prospectors as we got near Lake Bennett. They were out of food and were living off the meat they had made of their dogs. We did not have any more than we would need, but what can you do when men come to you with a plea that they are starving? Flour in that country was worth $60 for 50 pounds, but it had no price with me when I saw the poor wretches who were thinned down to skeletons. They were going back. I never heard whether they got out or not.

Builds a Ship For the Trip.

"Lake Bennett was where we built our boat. The Indians brought down the logs, while I sawed them into boards and then built our ship. A man named Van Wagner joined us here and went through the game. He was a lawyer in Seattle, but he was made of the right stuff. Our ship was about 30 feet long and 6 feet wide, and it was put together to stay. It wasn't very pretty to look at, but I guess it would have held its own against anything this side of a glacier.

"It was beginning to break up in the spring, and it was much easier sailing than it had been sledding. This lake is about 30 miles long. We got over it in three days without accident. It was, however, only the calm before the storm, since when we drifted into Lake Tagus all the furies on earth and under it were let loose. It blew so hard I really thought the earth would be blown to pieces. The snow fell almost a foot at a time, coming down in great sheets and emptying itself into the boat. We only went three miles in two days and were glad of that. The snow covered up the holes in the ice, and time and again we sank into the ice water up to our necks. It was part sledding and part sailing and every minute liable to be the last.

"The Tagus Indians have a post at the bottom of this lake, and we stopped a day with them, eating large quantities of frozen caribou, which was sickening in its filth, but nourishing after one got it down. It seemed as if we were eating twice as much as we did at home. I tell you I pity the men who have started to the Klondike this year when I read the supplies they have taken. They will run short before they get half way. There is no hope for them. It is likely those who go next spring will find rows of white boards on both sides of the trail. They are gone.

Frightful Dangers.

"If there was danger up to this point, then Lewis river is fire and brimstone. It was like making a trip over Niagara falls. In the places where it is smooth the current is at least 7 miles an hour, and in the places where it is rough it runs 40 miles an hour if an inch. It is filled with big rocks, some of which stick up in sight, others of which stay just below the surface.

"A scow ahead of us had seven men in it. All hands were at work with the oars, trying to keep it headed clear. We were coming along faster than steam launches. There was a cry from the company in front. In a minute the boat was cut squarely in two. A rock had torn through it like an ax. The men floundered around in the ice water. Part of them got out. The others went down. All the provisions were lost.

"This was more encouragement. We ran into the shore and did all we could for the poor wretches, and the last we saw of them they were sitting disconsolately on the bank, wondering whether to try to get out or to press on. I have never heard of them since.

"There is no man who can figure how many men are lost each year in trying to make this trip. Bodies are found all along the way. They are tangled in the driftwood of the eddies or thrown up on the ice. The miners usually dig a little grave for them. Many of them do not have any papers on them, and I suppose they go down in the list of the missing. I predict there will be plenty of missing next spring when navigation opens up and the people begin to come out.

Cold Water That Kills.

"It seems almost impossible for a man to do anything in the water up there. It is so cold that it seems to kill in a very few minutes after they get in.

FOLLOWING THE HOUNDS.

It is not alone in exceptional recreations like fox-hunting, that a woman needs steady nerves, strong muscles and a healthy, vigorous constitution. She needs them in her every day duties and pleasures. Recently a Buffalo lady called upon Dr. R. V. Pierce of that city and stated that she was so nervous that after months of trial she could not learn to ride a bicycle.

She was put under a scientific course of treatment, consisting of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery before meals and his "Favorite Prescription" after meals. The "Favorite Prescription" promptly cured the weakness and disease of the organs distinctly feminine, from which she suffered and restored strength and steadiness to the nerves. The "Golden Medical Discovery" cleansed the blood, making it pure, rich and invigorating, and built up solid, muscular flesh. The lady now rides her bicycle with grace and ease and without trepidation. Both medicines are for sale by medicine dealers. Dr. Pierce answers letters from ailing women without charge.

"I suffered with a bearing down pain in my pelvis and a hurting in my back and loins," writes Mrs. Tillie Cunningham, of Weir, Choctaw Co., Miss. "Whenever I would take a walk or ride very far it would always make me sick. After using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' for three months I can ride or walk and feel well afterwards. My appetite is good, all of my bad feelings have disappeared and I am strong and well."

You can secure Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser free by sending stamps to cover mailing. Paper-covered, 21 one-cent stamps; cloth-covered, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE GLAD HAND.

East Liverpool Extends a Hearty Welcome—Our Citizens Show Appreciation in Public Utterances.

Lack of appreciation is not a failing of our citizens, and the advent of the "little conqueror" was received with the same display of enthusiasm that has spread all over the Union. Coming like a ray of sunshine to every household, raising burdens that many backs have borne for years, is enough to awaken the public to praise the like of which has never before been heard in this locality. From every ward, from every street corner the same report. Failure is an unknown quantity as far as the "little conqueror" is concerned, and success follows every footstep. Right here at home the triumphs have been many and have set our people talking about the wondrous workings. The following case in point should interest every reader, and it is only one among thousands:

Mr. W. F. Cochran, of Mulberry street, East End, says: "At intervals for thirty years I have had serious kidney and bladder trouble. I have suffered with all the various symptoms in their worst form. The agony I have gone through can hardly be described. Many nights I have rolled from one side to the other trying to find an easy position for my back. I could not move without having sharp twinges of pain and I was also troubled with a urinary difficulty, the secretions being very irregular and at times distressing. I have been run down that I could hardly help myself. Doctors have treated me and I have taken a power of stuff. I had given up all hope of being cured, having suffered so long and not finding anything that would give me relief more than a few days. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised as a never failing remedy, I got a box at the W. and W. Pharmacy. After taking half of it I could see some improvement. I continued to improve from that time on. Doan's Kidney Pills have done me more good than anything I have yet taken and I am quite free in expressing my opinion of them by saying that they are a good remedy for all kidney and bladder trouble."

CAREY DOES VERY WELL

But His Batting Record Was Lowered.

NEW THINGS ABOUT MERCER

Sporting Writers Pay Him Much Attention, and Always Have a Good Word For Him—Wellsville and Liverpool at West End Park Today.

George Carey this week did not keep up his phenomenal batting record, and in 11 games, out of 41 times at bat, he made 15 hits for a total of 17 bases. He had 80 putouts, 5 assists, 1 error and 1 stolen base. In two of the games he covered left garden without an error.

Alf Shaw caught two games this week for the Syracuse team, and in eight times at bat made one hit. He had eight putouts, two assists, one error, and one passed ball.

Winnie Mercer has so far won 15 games and lost 19.

The Sporting Life says: "Mercer has a delivery very much like that of John Clarkson. His high slow ball is very coaxing, and he is continually finding fault with umpires who fail to concede all he asks for."

"Win Mercer is still coaching Cy Swain. Another year ought to make the lanky gentleman a crackerjack."

"Ohio is well represented in Washington in point of pitching material. Winnie Mercer, the star twirler of the Senators, Cy Swain and Roger Bresnahan are Buckeyes."

"Catcher McGuire, who has handled the delivery of Mercer since he was initiated into league company, is now catching the young twirlers and Farrell is acting as a backstop for Mercer and McJames."

Frank Booth, who last season played right half for the Bethany team, has written to the city asking for a place on the Monarch eleven. He is a good man and would strengthen the home team.

The East Liverpool and Wellsville teams are playing ball this afternoon at West End park, and a large crowd is in attendance.

WANTS US TO ACT.

East Palestine Is After the Improved Road.

The Palestine Reveille of this week says:

"Some time ago we spoke of the necessity of having a better road between this place and East Liverpool, or rather that part of the road between the George Mackall homestead and the point where the old road intersects the new one. The new road—a miserable one at best—is well-nigh impassable. It would be folly for the county commissioners to spend any more money upon it, as it will continue to be dangerous, and very expensive to keep in repair."

"The old road could easily be put in excellent condition from the iron bridge across Little Beaver near George Mackall's residence, to where it crosses the creek. By continuing the road along the east bank of Little Beaver, to a point near the residence of James Campbell, and there building a bridge across the creek, the steep hill near the ford could be avoided, and a good road built which would be both substantial and permanent. The amount of travel over the entire route would warrant the county commissioners in making the necessary improvements, even if it requires a new bridge. The citizens along the route should petition the commissioners asking them to provide a good safe, highway. There will be no trouble in having such a petition signed in East Liverpool and East Palestine. East Liverpool folks are equally interested in the matter and should act at once."

Coming and Going.

The household goods of W. F. Robinson arrived in this city yesterday afternoon from Allegheny. During the week five families have left the city, and but two have come in.

Repaired the Cars.

All the street cars have been repaired during the last few days. The company did this to facilitate the handling of the large crowd it expects to carry next Monday to Columbian Park.

By the Basket Full.

This morning on the market train 20 baskets of ware were sent to Pittsburg. This makes a total of 87 baskets for the week.

INVITATION.

All business men and farmers are invited to participate in the parade, Labor day, Sept. 6.

COMMITTEE.

All the news in the NEWS REVIEW.

NOT THE WAY IT WAS.

Things Had Not Changed at All Since He Was Young.

Three young men were sitting together in the rotunda of one of the big hotels. They were discussing the progress of invention.

"It's strange," said one, "how completely old ways of doing things have been superseded. You may talk about its being hard to introduce inventions, but if a scheme is any good it'll be universally adopted nowadays in no time. Why, you'll find even middle aged men who remember when everything in use was different. There's hardly a thing now that's done the same way or by the same appliances as it was when they were young. Why, my uncle can remember the time when every kind of goods was made by hand, and he isn't very old either. It's laughable to hear him tell how they used to get along. Everything, it seems, was done about the slowest and hardest way on earth. People used to think that they were in the world to work, and it didn't make much difference what they were at. I tell you, boys, you don't appreciate what it is to live in these days."

At this juncture a man with entirely gray hair folded his paper preparatory to departing and looked at the crowd near him. One of them, observing him, ventured to ask what he thought about it.

"Pretty nearly right, I guess," he said.

"Now, I suppose," began another, "you can remember when the horse car was the only known method of metropolitan conveyance, when bicycles were a thing to come, when telephones were an experiment, when they didn't make any ice in July, when most of the steel in buildings was in the door locks, when newspapers printed two sheets and thought them heavy, when fountain pens were an undisturbed dream, when aluminium was a theory and when harvesters were beginning to be talked about."

"No," returned the person addressed. "I'd like to agree with you, but I can't do it. The facts are otherwise. When I was a young man, business men used typewriters. A good many were thinking about putting in a phonograph. People who didn't own any bicycles or feel like paying for a cab usually traveled around town in a cable or electric car. Telephones cost 10 cents a try just as they do now, unless you knew somebody you could sponge on. Airships would go up and come down pretty much as they do now. The Sunday papers were so full of ads. that it took till Monday to find anything to read. Smoke consumers were making Chicago a beautiful place to live in."

The gathering was now looking incredulous. Things seemed to need an explanation. So he concluded: "You see, I got this gray hair trying to make a soda water manufactory pay in Kansas. Then a beard will add a few years. I was 27 last March."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Getting Married.

In "His Quest of the Golden Girl" Richard Le Galliene, in one of his opening chapters says:

"Undoubtedly the nicest way to get married is on the sly, and indeed it is at present becoming quite fashionable. Many young couples of my acquaintance, who have had no other reason for concealing the fact beyond their own whim, have thus slipped off without saying a word to anybody and returned full blown housekeepers, with at home days of their own and everything else like real married people—for, as the old lady said to me, 'You can never be sure of married people nowadays unless you have been at the wedding.'"

The author then further philosophizes as follows:

"I don't know myself what getting married feels like, but it cannot be much more exciting than watching other people getting married. Indeed, I always get something like palpitation of the heart just before the priest utters the final fateful words, 'I declare you man and wife.' Half a second before you were still free. Half a second after you were bound for the term of your natural life. Half a second before you had only to dash the book from the priest's hands and put your hands over his mouth, and though thus giddily swinging on to the brink of the precipice you are saved. Half a second after 'All the king's horses and all the king's men cannot make you a bachelor again.'"

"It is the knife edge moment betwixt time and eternity."

MY LADY'S SECRET.

My lady always smiled—not much to do, but when the hours and days increase in care, And drowsiness and weariness pursue, When youth and love grow dim in backward view, And life is but to bear and still forbear, Ah, then, her gentle sweetness, undefiled By years of bitterness, shone forth. She smiled.

My lady always smiled, in life and death. Some envied her a life that seemed all smiles, And some cried out or caught a sobbing breath, Self pitying, and God and man reviled, But some, to sorrow's burden reconciled, Were glad the gladness of her face to see Through toil and care and heartless apathy.

But when they laid my lady with the flowers To sleep, where wake a thousand smiling springs, A solitary father, praying hours Beneath grand arch and grave cathedral towers, Thanked, for my lady's rest, the King of kings. He knew her soul had yearned a weary while To sleep and rest the burden of a smile!

NOW WORTH MILLIONS.

Frank Phiscator Found a Big Fortune In the Klondike.

HORRORS OF ALASKAN WEATHER.

Young Prospector Makes Five Millions of Dollars In Fifteen Months—Perils of the Trip—Death Strews the Way With Skeletons and Menaces the Traveler at Every Step—A Thrilling Story Fresh From the Frozen Northwest.

Frank Phiscator of Baroda, Mich., is back from the Klondike with his pockets full of nuggets, his purse full of drafts and five times a millionaire, and his experiences in the frozen goldfields form the most thrilling and engrossing story that has yet come down from the Yukon country.

Phiscator became a gold king in 15 months. He went west with money he earned sawing wood. He was backed by two strong arms, a brave heart and a constitution as tough as a knot. He ran a race with death over glaciers, crags and passes, through raging rivers, canyons and rapids, into frozen lakes, killing storms, murderous insects and pests, past starvation, along yawning chasms and under avalanches. It is his verdict that a man who stands the venture earns all he gets. He pities the men who have dared to try the trip. He will be surprised if one-quarter of the crowd that has started gets through alive. He expects to find the trail from Dyea to Dawson strewn with dead when he goes again in March.

This man's story sounds like the tales from books of adventure where fact has no place. He told it the other night to some men who were preparing to start for the goldfield. They went home converted.

BUILT FOR THE JOURNEY.

Phiscator looks the sort of a man built for this journey. He is short, stocky and weighs 230 pounds. He has a sharp, clear eye—an eye of a man that would shoot rather than be shot. His upper lip curls up in an expression of recklessness. His hair is jet black. His neck is short. He walks with a swagger, shakes hand with a hard tug, takes his bracers straight, wears the big, white hat of the west. When he talks, he looks squarely at one, and his talk has the ring of rough honesty.

Here is the way he tells his story:

"It was the Klondike or die a year ago in February. The chances were ten to one I would never come home, and in view of the cheerful outlook I came to Baroda and Chicago to say goodbye to my friends and relatives. It seemed a big risk, but I had come to the conclusion to risk all I had as well as my life in one last try for a gold mine. You see, I had had years of roughing it and knew exactly what I wanted to take along. There didn't seem to be any other man who wanted to go with me, so one cold day I stood alone on the Seattle wharf, about the only white man bound to Juneau."

"It is easy to Juneau. The business of the journey begins right at this point, or it did at least with me. I picked up a fellow on the boat who was pretty brave, and we joined forces. There was but little accurate and detailed information about the country, but what little there was I had. It was all a blind chance, so far as I was concerned, barring the fact that some of the books said there was gold in Alaska for the mere finding. It did not take long for me to conclude that the books were all wrong. It looked for about six months that it would be great luck if we got out with only so much as our lives."

"The trip from Juneau to Dyea was made in a small boat. The weather was bad. The waves ran over the little thing, filling it with water almost as fast as all hands could bail it out. This was a mighty hard hundred miles, but it was a patch of roses in comparison with what came a few days later."

The Start For the Goldfields.

"Dyea was nothing but a dock and a few Indian huts. Charles Fifer, a wanderer from Wisconsin, was in the settlement, and when I told him what I was going to do he concluded to take a hand in the game. My baggage contained enough food for two years, tools which would be needed in case we wanted a boat and a miner's outfit. There was but little traffic over the mountain at that time, and the Indians were secured at a reasonable rate to do the packing. We started."

"It went all right for the first two days, the only danger being in crossing ravines and crevices filled with snow. The third day it snowed—snowed as it snows no other place but in Alaska. No one can tell or imagine its terribleness. It is not possible to see your hand at arm's length. There is nothing to do but to get on the lee side of a drift, roll up in blankets and rest on the sleds until the tempest passes. A tent is whipped into shreds in a minute or sent tearing into the canyons. A fire was out of the question, and we ate canned meats that were frozen solid."

"The sides of the mountains and glaciers are so steep that in many places all a stout man can handle is 100 pounds. There are days in which five miles is a good record. The way they do is to take part of the supplies about five miles ahead and leave them on the side of the trail while they go back for the rest. There is not a minute from Dyea to Lake Lindeman when a man is not more likely to die or be killed than he is to get along.

Death on Either Hand.

"We were caught in another snowstorm in the middle of Crater lake. The ice was beginning to break up. It was full of air holes. There was constant danger that we would plunge into one of these if we went ahead, and as great danger that we would be snowed under if we camped. It was almost a face to face proposition with death, and no one, not even an Indian, slept during that night. The next morning the ice began breaking up, and we were constantly dodging big cracks and heaving our sled over heaps."

"Slowly we worked along, not able to use the compass and trusting only to the general information we had from the Indians that we were on the road to reach the Yukon. They did not know anything about the gold mines, and all they did know was that in 30 or 40 days we might possibly get to our destination. It was no glittering prospect, I can tell you, and just as we were pretty well tucked out and beginning to wonder if it was worth while we came across the bodies of two men who had died by the wayside."

"We met some prospectors as we got near Lake Bennett. They were out of food and were living off the meat they had made of their dogs. We did not have any more than we would need, but what can you do when men come to you with a plea that they are starving? Flour in that country was worth $60 for 50 pounds, but it had no price with me when I saw the poor wretches who were thinned down to skeletons. They were going back. I never heard whether they got out or not."

Builds a Ship For the Trip.

"Lake Bennett was where we built our boat. The Indians brought down the logs, while I sawed them into boards and then built our ship. A man named Van Wagner joined us here and went through the game. He was a lawyer in Seattle, but he was made of the right stuff. Our ship was about 30 feet long and 6 feet wide, and it was put together to stay. It wasn't very pretty to look at, but I guess it would have held its own against anything this side of a glacier."

"It was beginning to break up in the spring, and it was much easier sailing than it had been sledding. This lake is about 30 miles long. We got over it in three days without accident. It was, however, only the calm before the storm, since when we drifted into Lake Tagus all the furies on earth and under it were let loose. It blew so hard I really thought the earth would be blown to pieces. The snow fell almost a foot at a time, coming down in great sheets and emptying itself into the boat. We only went three miles in two days and were glad of that. The snow covered up the holes in the ice, and time and again we sank into the ice water up to our necks. It was part sledding and part sailing and every minute liable to be the last."

"The Tagus Indians have a post at the bottom of this lake, and we stopped a day with them, eating large quantities of frozen caribou, which was sickening in its filth, but nourishing after one got it down. It seemed as if we were eating twice as much as we did at home. I tell you I pity the men who have started to the Klondike this year when I read the supplies they have taken. They will run short before they get half way. There is no hope for them. It is likely those who go next spring will find rows of white boards on both sides of the trail. They are gone."

Frightful Dangers.

"If there was danger up to this point, then Lewis river is fire and brimstone. It was like making a trip over Niagara falls. In the places where it is smooth the current is at least 7 miles an hour, and in the places where it is rough it runs 40 miles an hour if an inch. It is filled with big rocks, some of which stick up in sight, others of which stay just below the surface."

"A scow ahead of us had seven men in it. All hands were at work with the oars, trying to keep it headed clear. We were coming along faster than steam launches. There was a cry from the company in front. In a minute the boat was cut squarely in two. A rock had torn through it like an ax. The men floundered around in the ice water. Part of them got out. The others went down. All the provisions were lost."

"This was more encouragement. We ran into the shore and did all we could for the poor wretches, and the last we saw of them they were sitting disconsolately on the bank, wondering whether to try to get out or to press on. I have never heard of them since."

"There is no man who can figure how many men are lost each year in trying to make this trip. Bodies are found all along the way. They are tangled in the driftwood of the eddies or thrown up on the ice. The miners usually dig a little grave for them. Many of them do not have any papers on them, and I suppose they go down in the list of the missing. I predict there will be plenty of missing next spring when navigation opens up and the people begin to come out."

Cold Water That Kills.

FOLLOWING THE HOUNDS.

It is not alone in exceptional recreations like fox-hunting, that a woman needs steady nerves, strong muscles and a healthy, vigorous constitution. She needs them in her every day duties and pleasures. Recently a Buffalo lady called upon Dr. R. V. Pierce of that city and stated that she was so nervous that after months of trial she could not learn to ride a bicycle.

She was put under a scientific course of treatment, consisting of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery before meals and his "Favorite Prescription" after meals. The "Favorite Prescription" promptly cured the weakness and disease of the organs distinctly feminine, from which she suffered and restored strength and steadiness to the nerves. The "Golden Medical Discovery" cleansed the blood, making it pure, rich and invigorating, and built up solid, muscular flesh. The lady now rides her bicycle with grace and ease and without trepidation. Both medicines are for sale by medicine dealers. Dr. Pierce answers letters from ailing women without charge.

"I suffered with a bearing down pain in my pelvis and a hurting in my back and loins," writes Mrs. Tillie Cunningham, of Weir, Chocoma, Miss. "Whenever I would take a walk or ride very far it would always make me sick. After using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' for three months I can ride or walk and feel well afterwards. My appetite is good, all of my bad feelings have disappeared and I am strong and well."

You can secure Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser free by sending stamps to cover mailing. Paper-covered, 21 one-cent stamps; cloth-covered, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE GLAD HAND.

East Liverpool Extends a Hearty Welcome—Our Citizens Show Appreciation in Public Utterances.

Lack of appreciation is not a failing of our citizens, and the advent of the "little conqueror" was received with the same display of enthusiasm that has spread all over the Union. Coming like a ray of sunshine to every household, raising burdens that many backs have borne for years, is enough to awaken the public to praise the like of which has never before been heard in this locality from every ward, from every street, from every home. Failure is an unknown quantity as far as the "little conqueror" is concerned, and success follows every footstep. Right here at home the triumphs have been many and have set our people talking about the wondrous workings. The following case in point should interest every reader, and it is only one among thousands:

RAIDED A DISORDERLY

The Police Called at the Frame Row.

WILL BE MADE A TEST CASE

Harry Jones Wrote to His Father From Africa—A Sprinting Team Will Go to Toronto—No Pay Car Next Monday—All the News of Wellsville.

The police have for some time been considering the advisability of making the disorderlies feel the influence of the law, and last night a raid was made on the frame row, Third street, by Officers Cohagen and Johnson. Jesse Delaney, Claude Marshall, Etta Rager, Joseph Williams and Fred Thompson were taken to city hall, one woman being left at the house to look after a baby. The crowd had been in jail but a short time when they began to sing and dance, and the noise was continued until a late hour.

Harry Jones In Africa.

Mayor Jones last night received a letter from his son Harry, who is now in Salisbury, Rhodesia, South Africa. He says there have been stirring times in that part of the world since the English began the task of subduing the natives, and in one battle 100 Mashons were killed and 600 captured with no other damage than the wounding of two English soldiers. August 18, when the letter was written, an expedition was about to start against Mashongombi, the most dangerous and troublesome of all the chiefs.

Fun For the Rival.

A party of practical jokers took a jealous young man in hand last night, and after showing him his sweetheart with another man offered to arm themselves with baseball bats and help him annihilate the other fellow. The rival saw the crowd were following him, and hastened to make his escape with the young woman through the back door of a restaurant.

PERHAPS the best argument in favor of the annexation of Hawaii can be found in the fact that the sugar trust is working with might and main to prevent it.

If John R. McLean happens to live in history it will not be as the Washington man who followed the example of a New York man and represented Ohio in the senate.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY is popular.
Wherever he has been since his vacation began, he has been given every possible mark of esteem by the thousands who crowded over each other to shake his hand.

THE sensational utterances of Mr.
Debbs come so often and have so little influence that he has ceased to be the important personage he was a few years ago. American workingmen do not take kindly to the advice he is prone to give.

COMPARE the number of men employed today with the number who had work three years ago today, and then decide whether the claim of prosperity as made by the Republicans, or the howl of calamity coming from the Democrats, shows the real condition of affairs.

THE Toledo Blade is very anxious to have Ohio's centennial officially celebrated in the enterprising town by the lake. Naturally, but does the Blade realize how inconvenient such an arrangement would be for the great majority of Buckeyes who also want to celebrate?

THE man who gleams his information from the Democratic press probably believes that every other mill and factory in the country is shut down and myriads of people are suffering for want of the necessaries of life. Such is the McLean campaign literature printed every week at the request of Friend O'Myers.

LABOR DAY.

The first Monday of September is becoming more popular every year with the people of this place. Each celebration has been more elaborate, more successful than that which preceded it, and there is no reason to believe that the observance of Labor day this year will not be the biggest and best East Liverpool has ever known.

For this there are reasons. In addition to observing the occasion as one set apart for the great mass of Ohio's people, the potters and their friends can take it as the time when they can appropriately celebrate the return of prosperity after a season of depression, when they can recall with pleasure that the victory has been won. While they know that the fruits of last November's contest are not for them until the first of next year, they are satisfied that the old wages, the rate under which they prospered, will be theirs again and with it will come the progress and comforts for which they have so long been waiting.

terian chapel shall attend Grant street instead of Northside. Professor Rayman was given the power to make such changes as he deemed necessary after school opens.

The financial report of Clerk Norris was adopted, and the board of examiners submitted a report, and said if the board desired to see the grade of any of the teachers they could do so by calling on Clerk Norris. The list of successful teachers is as follows:

One year—Harriet Andrews, Eva Rigby, Isabelle McClain, Miss Francisco.

Two years—Lina Joseph, Angie Moore,
Gordon Armstrong.

Three years—Mary Jackman.

Five years—Martha Caliebe, Mary Croft.

The report was adopted, and Miss Rigby was added to the list of substitutes.

A communication was received from Professor Harper, offering to teach music in all the schools for $800, in the higher grades for $480, and in the high school for $200. He also offered to furnish the music books for $40, $35 and $25. It was decided to act on it at a later date.

The bonds came next, and the first bid opened was that of S. A. Keene, of Chicago, who offered two per cent below par for them; Nease & Co., of Chicago, did not care to bid, but said they could use 4 1/2 per cent bonds at a premium;
Mason, Lewis & Co., of Chicago, offered
$11 premium, and Rudolph, Kleybolte &
Co., of Cincinnati, were willing to pay $18.59. Seasongood, Mayer & Co., of

There were six applicants for the position of janitor at the North Side school, and the position was given to Mr. Far-

Professor Rayman reported that everything was in readiness for the opening of schools, and that it was deemed best not to call the high school until Tuesday afternoon as the morning would be occupied in receiving the new classes from the grammar school. He also spoke of music in the high school, and said that Miss Francisco had a great deal of experience in music and was willing to take charge of the work. Professor Rayman, W. T. Norris and J. C.
McClain will consider the purchase of music books, and report at the next meeting.

Mrs. Ikirt was reappointed a member of the board of examiners, and the matter of purchasing supplies was left in the hands of the clerk and superintendent.

After the board adjourned Clerk
Norris and Superintendent Rayman let the contract for supplies to William G. Johnston, of Pittsburg, while the Greenwood School Supply company, of Youngstown, will furnish the chalk.
It was decided to divide the necessary printing among the city offices.

Another Expression Concerning the Cumberland Branch.

In line with an article in yesterday's NEWS REVIEW is the following from the
Pittsburg Post of today:

"It is understood that the Pennsylvania company will eventually extend the New Cumberland branch to a point opposite Rochester, where a bridge may be built to make connections with the
the Ft. Wayne. As the Erie company and other corporations have been contemplating the construction of a new line, so as to give the extension of the Niles and Lisbon railroad an entrance to Pittsburg, it is probable the
'Pennsy' will secure the franchises and shut out the other people by building a road from Rock Spring to Rochester."

WILL BE EXTENDED.

Another Expression Concerning the Cumberland Branch.

In line with an article in yesterday's NEWS REVIEW is the following from the
Pittsburg Post of today:

"It is understood that the Pennsylvania company will eventually extend
the New Cumberland branch to a point
opposite Rochester, where a bridge may be built to make connections with the
the Ft. Wayne. As the Erie company
and other corporations have been contemplating the construction of a new line, so as to give the extension of the Niles and Lisbon railroad an entrance to Pittsburg, it is probable the
'Pennsy' will secure the franchises
and shut out the other people by building a road from Rock Spring to Rochester."

Excursions to Columbus, O.

Low rate excursion tickets will be sold to Columbus, O., from ticket stations on

PRASED THE NEWS REVIEW

The Committee Like the Programs—Special officers Will See That Those Who Enter Columbian Park Next Monday Pay the Price—The Last of Their Work.

There was a full attendance last evening at the meeting of the Labor day committee, and all arrangements were completed for the celebration.

The ground committee reported that they had let the privilege for several stands, and that a local ice company had donated ice, and there would be plenty of water on the grounds.

Twelve special officers will be sworn in, and they will have all the powers of constables to make arrests and maintain order. They were instructed to collect admission from all parties who enter the ground by the fence route, and the enclosure will be carefully guarded.

The program committee reported their work complete, and much satisfaction and words of praise were expressed by the entire committee over the ability displayed by the News Review in the printing of it. They reported that they had collected $150, and would collect a balance of $55 before Monday, making a total of $205 received from the program.

The music committee reported that they had engaged two bands and an orchestra, while the chief marshal said that all arrangements were completed for the parade.

The barbers, who have recently received a charter and are now numbered among the labor unions, were extended an invitation to participate in the parade.

Chairman O. D. Nice, of the ticket committee, reported that he had appointed 12 assistants, and the programs were ordered distributed in this city and Wellsville, the bulk of them being retained for use at the park.

The railroad committee stated that they had secured a rate of one fare from Steubenville to Rochester on the Cleveland and Pittsburg, and from Alliance to Rochester on the Ft. Wayne. It is too late for the railroads to advertise.

The dance committee was authorized to charge 10 cents per dance or three dances for 25 cents. The sport committee will get all the necessary paraphernalia on the ground, and all arrangements for the balloon ascension and parachute jump are completed.

NOT MANY ENTRIES.

But There Will Be Good Horse Racing.

The entries for the Labor day sports are not filling up as rapidly as they should, and in some of the events no entries have been received. The horse race promises to be the most exciting of the day, and thus far Willie L. Egremont, Harry Hauntus and Little Gretta have been entered, and it is probable at least three more fast horses will start.

NO WORK LABOR DAY.

The City Will Observe the Occasion In Approved Style.

The city has prepared to celebrate Labor Day in the most approved style. All the potteries will be closed, and the banks will observe the occasion. Business houses will close at noon. There will be little business in the afternoon.

Contractor Floto, of the memorial chapel, left this morning for Steubenville, where he will visit his mother who is very ill. Her recovery is doubtful.

THE BIG CELEBRATION

Hundreds of People Gathered at Mahan's Grove.

FIRST TRAINS WERE LOADED

The Opening of Regular Passenger Service on the Upper End of the Cumberland Branch Was Observed In the Right Manner.

Regular passenger service on the upper end of the Cumberland branch was opened today, the occasion being observed by the gathering of many people at Mahan's grove.

The first train came to Kenilworth, the eastern terminus of the line, at 6:30 o'clock, and was soon crowded with people. Another trip was made at 9:30 when another big crowd was moved. Each train was made up of six coaches and a baggage car, and the people seemed to be out for the purpose of celebrating the occasion.

They were all taken to Mahan's grove where they spent the day. A number of speeches were made by prominent men of the county, and there was an abundance of music.

The train service will be a great boon for people having business at the county seat. The train will make two round trips from Cumberland Junction each day, one in the morning and one in the afternoon.

APPLIED FOR A DIVORCE.

Mrs. John H. Simms Takes Her Case to Court.

Announcement is made today that Mrs. Anna F. Simms, wife of John H. Simms, has applied for divorce and alimony. The grounds alleged are cruelty and gross neglect of duty.

The young couple are well known in this city and have been married for some time. The defendant is now in California.

The Mining Company.

The Alaska gold mining company, of this place, will meet next Wednesday evening and complete arrangements for their organization. So far no less than 100 shares have been taken. It is the intention of the company to send two men to the Klondyke on the first steamer leaving in the spring. From present indications it looks as if Bud Hilliard, of Chester, would be one of the parties selected.

TRADE IMPROVES.

How the Situation Is Observed In New York.

The New York Crockery Journal has this to say of the crockery trade:

"Trade improves from week to week, and some houses are very busy. The demand is largely for fancy goods, staples being sadly neglected. Southern buyers are here in force, Texas being particularly well represented. Local buyers have so far kept out of the market, except for lamps. They may be right, but indications are to the effect that some of them will wish they had bought earlier. A peculiar feature which seems to have a hold on all, or nearly all, buyers of pottery is that they are asking for job lots. The domestic manufacturers are very firm in their prices and are even raising them on new goods. Retail trade in the city is very dull, but the end of that dullness is near at hand."

A NEAT SUM

Was Collected by the Miners of the Bridgeport District.

Emmil Summers and James Wulkum, as miners from the Bridgeport district, who have been in the city for several days soliciting aid, returned home last evening. They said they did not meet with the success they thought they would, that several other solicitors were before them. They carried away $67.45 with them, and a local hotel keeper gave them their meals and lodging gratis.

TWO CASES FOR TRIAL

Mayor Gilbert Has Next Week Well Started.

BRANNON TOLD HIS STORY

He Will Fight Robert Moore's Charge and Complain in Retaliation to the United States Marshal at Cleveland. Another Matter.

The mayor last evening disposed of two cases that have been on the books for several days, and the principals will stand trial.

Jennie Watters, with a small child, strolled into the mayor's office, to answer a charge of disorderly conduct that had been preferred against her. The mayor leaned back in his chair and listened attentively to the story that was being told, and when she had finished said:

"Well what do you intend to do about it?"

"Do about it? Why I will stand trial as I never did anything."

"Not guilty?" asked the mayor.

"No sir."

"Well, I will let you know when the trial is set," and then the woman and child departed.

Shortly afterward James Brannon came in to answer a charge made against him by Robert Moore. The mayor read the charge and Brannon said "not guilty." The trial will take place the first part of the week.

Brannon was seen later in the evening, and said he intended to enter a charge against Moore before the United States marshal in Cleveland, charging him with destroying river property. He claims Moore cut the ropes by which his boat was tied, and the craft floated down stream, and it took some quick work on his part to save it. He claims he has a good case, and will push it as far as possible.

WEST VIRGINIA STATE FAIR.

Splendid Special Attractions for Amusement of Visitors.

The program of special attractions for the seventeenth annual state fair which opens on the magnificent grounds at Wheeling September 6, is by far the best ever prepared by the management. In addition to the splendid racing program, and the long list of varied amusements and interesting sights inseparable from an exhibition of this magnitude, the association has secured the matchless Prof. Ed. R. Hutchison, King of the clouds. Madam Ruby Deveau, and the wonderful aerial dog wonder, Daisy, for daily balloon ascensions and parachute jumps. These are the greatest aeronauts of the world, and will give an exhibition the like of which was never before seen in this section of the country. Another great attraction will be the three La Rosas, Frank, Tina and Edward, in a splendid daily program of athletic feats. As Roman ring experts they have given exhibitions throughout the principal countries of the world, and have a standing challenge of $500 to all rivals and competitors. The La Rosas will give a daily exhibition, free to all on the grounds.

The Discovery of Iron.

According to the traditions of the Greeks, the first discovery of iron by the human race was made on Mount Ida, by a tribe called Dactyles. It is said that the forest was set on fire by lightning, and so intense was the heat of the great masses of fallen trees that the bed of iron beneath was melted and trickled in small streams down into the valley.

Iron in Architecture.

The use of iron in architecture is not so new as people are accustomed to think. At Delhi is a forged iron column 60 feet high. It is 16 inches in diameter at the base and 12 inches at the top. Its weight is estimated at about 17 tons. From records extant it is reasonably certain that it was already in existence 900 years B. C.

—Charles Larkins returned from Allegheny last evening, after spending a day there on business.

NOW WORTH MILLIONS.

TO IT. IT MAKES NO DIFFERENCE HOW expert a swimmer the man may be, I never saw one in any of the rivers who could get out alive.

"It took us 56 days to get to the Yukon, and we danced a set with death every day. The river was about a quarter of a mile wide where we entered it and flows in such a torrent that we had to keep near the shore. It is lined with rocks and trees that threaten to swamp you, but with the greatest caution we finally pulled up at Forty Mile Post on Forty Mile creek.

"There was great excitement at Forty Mile when we returned. A prospector had come in from the Klondike district with the information that he had struck it rich. There was a wild scramble to Bonanza creek, the location of his discovery. I started the same night, poling 55 miles up the Yukon before noon of the next day. An hour in time on that trip might have meant a million in money, and it is wonderful how a man will work when an hour's extra labor may settle things for him for the balance of his life.

"We did not want to be handicapped in the race with our provisions, so we left them on the shore of the Klondike with some Indians. This left us free handed, and we scudded over the mountains, carrying only our mining outfit, about 100 pounds to the man. We were among the very first to reach Bonanza, staking four claims in the richest part. They did not seem to pay as much as we expected, and so we concluded to go back and try some place else, holding our claims in case of emergency.

The First Find.

"We were creeping down from Bonanza when we came to a camping place a little below the mouth of El Dorado. I think the men with me were ready to throw up their hands. They were glad to act as cooks on an offer that if they would cut the wood and get the meals I would take a run up to El Dorado and see what I could find. It was about all I could do to get my 100 pounds on my shoulder and get started. It was apparently the last chance, as the grub was out and there was none to buy and no money to buy with.

Panned Out a Quarter.

"I confess I was feeling a good deal like a man just waking up from a good dream. It was a hard mile and a rough mile to the creek, and with a discouraged heart the tools were unpacked and the old pick again whacked into the ground. You can't tell there is gold in the ground by the way it looks, and I don't think I expected to find a bit of the yellow metal within 40 miles of where I was working. There was a little excitement in washing the first pan, and I tell you I handled that shovel full of Alaska gravel with great care. The sand gradually ran out, and with close searching I was able to get together about 25 cents' worth of yellow dust. It was a big come down from the stake set when we left Montana, but it was the only stake in sight at the time. I was that or nothing.

"It was a joyful night in Phisicamp that night, if it was not very hot. The boys were happy even in their hunger, and could hardly wait for morning to get into the field and locate. My claim was No. 1, and the other took claims on both sides.

"We actually danced up the El Dorado about 3 o'clock next morning. I think each of us could have carried a ton. We forgot hunger and weakness, with only very poor wages in sight. It was our only hope, and we made the most of it.

"I went to work on the spot where I had earned the 25 cents the next day. It was good I was of a stout and rugged disposition. I shoveled one scoop into the pan and began to sift. I got a nugget worth $7. It was enough to cause heart disease. The other men did as well, and there was no doubt we had made our pile.

"We three were the only ones on the creek. We saw there was no danger that our claims were not clearly marked, and then prospected all the way up the stream, about 30 miles. We found it good in spots and bad in others—finding at least 30 locations where one was as good as the other.

Riches Going to Waste.

"We sat in our tent at night and almost wept that we could not get word back to our friends. We saw millions, with no one to claim them. I do not think a claim of the 30 is worth today a cent less than $1,000,000 each. The law allowed us only three—one each.

"This much for the way we found it and the time we had in finding it. This is the way the gold runs after you have a good claim.

"It is possible to work the claims about 2½ months a year. You can't get water any of the balance of the time. I put in this amount of time on my claim and took out exactly $96,072. It was done by myself and two men, who earned $15 a day as laborers.

"It is beyond comprehension to imagine the richness of the soil. During the summer we worked over a space 86 feet long by 35 feet wide to the depth of 4 feet. The find was $49,084.

"The biggest pan ever turned out on the claim held $52. Berry, who has a claim near by, beat this by picking his dirt. He got $595 at one sifting. The nuggets run from $15 to $40.

"It sounds big and comfortable and pleasant, but I want to tell you that it costs all it is worth.

Horrors of the Climate.

"There are troubles in the air and on the ground and everywhere. It gets down to 73 degrees below zero and sticks there for ten days at a stretch, and it is all bosh about the cold being so dry that it is not felt. It is the cold cold out of doors. It will run along at 60 degrees below zero for three weeks or a month at a time.

"It is so cold that the ground is frozen to a depth of 80 feet. It does not thaw out in the summer time, even under the redhot sun. The cold from the frost comes up through the moss, and in the middle of August the cold oozing out of the ground freezes the low places.

"The winter days are horrors. The sun gets up at 9:30 in the morning and disappears at 2:30 in the afternoon. It snows all the time, and there is nothing to do but to keep from freezing to death.

"In the summer the sun hardly ever gets out of sight. It is daylight at midnight. The sun gets to a point which looks about 15 feet above the horizon and then starts back. It never sets.

"If one likes this sort of a thing, he can get rich at the Klondike.

"My advice is, all tenderfeet had better stay home and live than try to get rich in the Klondike. It has more kinds of death than any place on earth."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Princess Louise an Artist.

Princess Louise, fourth daughter of Victoria, has branched out as an architect as well as an artist. A picturesque inn on the Clyde is going up from her design and under her close supervision. She will paint the sign to be hung above the doorway. The Marquis of Lorne, her husband, is a junior partner in a London firm of house decorators, and this also affords a field in which the princess exercises her talents.

The greatest of all luxuries in central Africa is salt. To say that a man eats salt with his victuals is the same as saying that he is a rich man. Mungo Park says, "The long continued use of vegetable food creates so painful a longing for salt that no words can sufficiently describe it."

The Morgan & Wright single-tube quick-repair tire must be regarded as a distinct improvement in bicycle tire construction. It has the following advantages:

The Morgan & Wright single-tube quick-repair tire is guaranteed not porous. This is on account of the way in which it is made. Nearly every rider has heard of tires that "leak like a sieve."

Many tires rot, because water gets into the fabric between the two layers of rubber. The Morgan & Wright fabric is proof against moisture.

Everybody knows how comfortable Morgan & Wright tires are, and yet how seldom they puncture. This is due to the fabric.

Ask any bicycle dealer whether other tires last as long as Morgan & Wright tires. Ask, also, what the Morgan & Wright guarantee means. Morgan & Wright tires are repaired free of charge, at the factory in Chicago or at any of the Morgan & Wright free repair shops, located in the principal cities.

N. B.—When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

TWO CASES FOR TRIAL

Mayor Gilbert Has Next Week Well Started.

BRANNON TOLD HIS STORY

He Will Fight Robert Moore's Charge and Complain in Retaliation to the United States Marshal at Cleveland. Another Matter.

The mayor last evening disposed of two cases that have been on the books for several days, and the principals will stand trial.

Jennie Watters, with a small child, strolled into the mayor's office, to answer a charge of disorderly conduct that had been preferred against her. The mayor leaned back in his chair and listened attentively to the story that was being told, and when she had finished said:

"Well what do you intend to do about it?"

"Do about it? Why I will stand trial as I never did anything."

"Not guilty?" asked the mayor.

"No sir."

"Well, I will let you know when the trial is set," and then the woman and child departed.

Shortly afterward James Brannon came in to answer a charge made against him by Robert Moore. The mayor read the charge and Brannon said "not guilty." The trial will take place the first part of the week.

Brannon was seen later in the evening, and said he intended to enter a charge against Moore before the United States marshal in Cleveland, charging him with destroying river property. He claims Moore cut the ropes by which his boat was tied, and the craft floated down stream, and it took some quick work on his part to save it. He claims he has a good case, and will push it as far as possible.

WEST VIRGINIA STATE FAIR.

Splendid Special Attractions for Amusement of Visitors.

The program of special attractions for the seventeenth annual state fair which opens on the magnificent grounds at Wheeling September 6, is by far the best ever prepared by the management. In addition to the splendid racing program, and the long list of varied amusements and interesting sights inseparable from an exhibition of this magnitude, the association has secured the matchless Prof. Ed. R. Hutchison, King of the clouds. Madam Ruby Deveau, and the wonderful aerial dog wonder, Daisy, for daily balloon ascensions and parachute jumps. These are the greatest aeronauts of the world, and will give an exhibition the like of which was never before seen in this section of the country. Another great attraction will be the three La Rosas, Frank, Tina and Edward, in a splendid daily program of athletic feats. As Roman ring experts they have given exhibitions throughout the principal countries of the world, and have a standing challenge of $500 to all rivals and competitors. The La Rosas will give a daily exhibition, free to all on the grounds.

The Discovery of Iron.

According to the traditions of the Greeks, the first discovery of iron by the human race was made on Mount Ida, by a tribe called Dactyles. It is said that the forest was set on fire by lightning, and so intense was the heat of the great masses of fallen trees that the bed of iron beneath was melted and trickled in small streams down into the valley.

Iron in Architecture.

The use of iron in architecture is not so new as people are accustomed to think. At Delhi is a forged iron column 60 feet high. It is 16 inches in diameter at the base and 12 inches at the top. Its weight is estimated at about 17 tons. From records extant it is reasonably certain that it was already in existence 900 years B. C.

—Charles Larkins returned from Allegheny last evening, after spending a day there on business.

NOW WORTH MILLIONS.

TO THE IT MAKES NO DIFFERENCE NOW EXPERT A SWIMMER THE MAN MAY BE, I NEVER SAW ONE IN ANY OF THE RIVERS WHO COULD GET OUT ALIVE.

"It took us 56 days to get to the Yukon, and we danced a set with death every day. The river was about a quarter of a mile wide where we entered it and flows in such a torrent that we had to keep near the shore. It is lined with rocks and trees that threaten to swamp you, but with the greatest caution we finally pulled up at Forty Mile Post on Forty Mile creek.

"There was great excitement at Forty Mile when we returned. A prospector had come in from the Klondike district with the information that he had struck it rich. There was a wild scramble to Bonanza creek, the location of his discovery. I started the same night, poling 55 miles up the Yukon before noon of the next day. An hour in time on that trip might have meant a million in money, and it is wonderful how a man will work when an hour's extra labor may settle things for him for the balance of his life.

"We did not want to be handicapped in the race with our provisions, so we left them on the shore of the Klondike with some Indians. This left us free handed, and we scudded over the mountains, carrying only our mining outfit, about 100 pounds to the man. We were among the very first to reach Bonanza, staking four claims in the richest part. They did not seem to pay as much as we expected, and so we concluded to go back and try some place else, holding our claims in case of emergency.

The First Find.

"We were creeping down from Bonanza when we came to a camping place a little below the mouth of El Dorado. I think the men with me were ready to throw up their hands. They were glad to act as cooks on an offer that if they would cut the wood and get the meals I would take a run up to El Dorado and see what I could find. It was about all I could do to get my 100 pounds on my shoulder and get started. It was apparently the last chance, as the grub was out and there was none to buy and no money to buy with.

Panned Out a Quarter.

"I confess I was feeling a good deal like a man just waking up from a good dream. It was a hard mile and a rough mile to the creek, and with a discouraged heart the tools were unpacked and the old pick again whacked into the ground. You can't tell there is gold in the ground by the way it looks, and I don't think I expected to find a bit of the yellow metal within 40 miles of where I was working. There was a little excitement in washing the first pan, and I tell you I handled that shovel full of Alaska gravel with great care. The sand gradually ran out, and with close searching I was able to get together about 25 cents' worth of yellow dust. It was a big come down from the stake set when we left Montana, but it was the only stake in sight at the time. I was that or nothing.

"It was a joyful night in Phiscater camp that night, if it was not very hot. The boys were happy even in their hunger, and could hardly wait for morning to get into the field and locate. My claim was No. 1, and the other took claims on both sides.

"We actually danced up the El Dorado about 3 o'clock next morning. I think each of us could have carried a ton. We forgot hunger and weakness, with only very poor wages in sight. It was our only hope, and we made the most of it.

"I went to work on the spot where I had earned the 25 cents the next day. It was good I was of a stout and rugged disposition. I shoveled one scoop into the pan and began to sift. I got a nugget worth $7. It was enough to cause heart disease. The other men did as well, and there was no doubt we had made our pile.

"We three were the only ones on the creek. We saw there was no danger that our claims were not clearly marked, and then prospected all the way up the stream, about 30 miles. We found it good in spots and bad in others—finding at least 30 locations where one was as good as the other.

Horrors of the Climate.

"There are troubles in the air and on the ground and everywhere. It gets down to 73 degrees below zero and sticks there for ten days at a stretch, and it is all bosh about the cold being so dry that it is not felt. It is the coldest cold out of doors. It will run along at 60 degrees below zero for three weeks or a month at a time.

MISS THE MEETING

Another Chance For the Board of Health.

HAS FADED INTO THE PAST

Only One Member, the Clerk and Sanitary Officer Were at City Hall Last Night at the Appointed Time—West End People Had an Objection.

Because there was no quorum, there was no meeting of the board of health last night. The secretary and Member Kauffman were the only people present. Sanitary Officer Burgess had his report prepared, but did not have a chance to read it. It is as follows: Notices served to abate nuisances, 52; scarlet fever cases quarantined, 1; diphtheria cases quarantined, 2; dogs killed and skinned, 7.

There is a probability that the board will hold an extra session next Friday evening.

A committee of men, representing the citizens of Sunnyside, were present and had a grievance to present, but went away looking sad when told there was no meeting.

PLEASING CONTRAST

To Free Coinage Predictions—Colonel Kilbourne's Manufacturing Busy.

Colonel James Kilbourne, one of the largest manufacturers of Columbus, and long an enthusiastic advocate of the free coinage of silver, is having troubles of his own in explaining the prosperity now prevailing in his own vast manufactory. The colonel is one of the leading Democrats of the state, and more than once has been favorably mentioned by party leaders as an available candidate for governor. Last year he was delivering himself copiously of free silver argument, and declaring that financial policy would be found the only salvation of this government. This summer he has gone to Europe. Prosperity made the wheels of his manufacturing plant hum so merrily that the colonel was overworked in trying to get out orders, and a rest became necessary.

The advance agent seems to have made a very satisfactory visit to the works in which much of Colonel Kilbourne's capital is invested. Mr. Fred Hubbard, secretary of the Kilbourne & Jacobs company, tells a Columbus newspaper correspondent that business is booming. "We are just swamped," the newspaper man quotes him as saying, "and if we had not accumulated a large surplus stock when times were dull we would not be able to fill our orders. If this rush keeps up, and the indications are that it will, we will be compelled to increase our already extensive facilities."

From this it does not appear that it is the free coinage of silver which was needed to stimulate industry in the works owned by this eminent silver advocate. To put it in the form which probably would suit the free coinage statesmen best, "notwithstanding" this country's sound financial system, the machines in Colonel Kilbourne's manufactory are making merry music.

WAGES ADVANCED.

Employers, Who Can See Prosperity, Make 4,000 Men Happy.

Nearly six months ago the National Tube works of McKeesport, Pa., cut the wages of its employees upon the ground that business conditions would not justify the scale which the company then was paying. A few days ago the company voluntarily restored the wages of its men to the figures paid before the reduction went into effect. When the workmen were informed of the advance in their wages, Manager Horace Crosby said to them:

"While the price of pipe has not increased, there is an improved tone in the business world. We expect prices to advance in the near future, and on the strength of that expectation we feel justified in restoring wages."

Four thousand men are employed by the company, every department of the works is running night and day, and as might naturally be expected, the free silver calamity howler does not find a congenial atmosphere in the city of McKeesport.

FORAKER IN THE CAMPAIGN

Senator Foraker has notified the Republican state executive committee that during the campaign all of his time, except Monday of each week, will be at the command of the committee. This is the best reply to some of the scurrilous Democratic slanders emanating from John R. McLean's newspaper and campaign committee.

Some sensitive plants growing in marshes in the southern states are provided with a substitute for nerves, the antennae, or hairs, on the edges of the leaves being the feelers. When touched, the entire leaf shrinks away from the hand.

SUPPOSE.

Suppose, my dear, that you were I,
And by your side your sweetheart sat.
Suppose you noticed by and by
The distance 'twixt you was too great.
Now tell me, dear, what would you do?
I know, and so do you!

And then, so comfortably placed,
Suppose you only grew aware
That that dear, dainty little waist
Of hers looked very lonely there.
Pray tell me, sooth, what would you do?
I know, and so do you!

Then, having done what I just did,

A TOOTHBRUSH FOR KOKO.

Costly Toilet Articles Purchased by Rich Girls For Their Pet Dogs.

A score or more of dainty toilet articles, gold mounted and jeweled, were scattered over the glass counter, and the obliging clerk in the fashionable shop was vainly endeavoring to satisfy the whims of a daughter of wealth, who had every appearance of having been spoiled by overindulgence. She had a costly toothbrush in her hand and was poking the other articles with it in a dissatisfied way. "This is not small enough," she said, "and the hair is not fine enough."

"It is our very best grade of goods," suggested the clerk half apologetically. "Then you ought to get something better. Yes, really, you ought," exclaimed the willful customer. "I can't take such a clumsy toothbrush as that home to my Koko."

"Ah!" murmured the clerk, with a scarcely perceptible air of impatience. "Then you want a toothbrush for your dog."

"Yes, of course I do, and I want something very soft and very dainty," replied the young woman. And, after a pause, she added, with an affectionate purr, "There isn't anything too nice for my Koko."

"Certainly not," responded the clerk, with a cordial smile. "Here are some brushes of rare quality. I had overlooked them. Here is one with hair as soft as silk and a handle of solid gold." The girl fondled the expensive trinket for a moment, and, without asking the price, said, "That will do. Have it sent with the other things, please." When this spoiled maiden's father gets a bill from the fashionable jeweler, he will doubtless be moved to emotion by the entry, "One toothbrush for dog, $22.50."

It is no uncommon thing for shopkeepers in New York to be called upon to supply toilet articles for dogs, monkeys, birds and other domestic pets. Some stores maintain special lines of combs and brushes for pet dogs, and as a special concession to the enthusiasm of the fair owners of these pets the prices of dog combs and brushes are kept aristocratically high.—New York Times.

Millions of Frogs Rain Down.

One of the most curious phenomena of nature is the precipitation of frogs, fish, crabs, angleworms, etc., with rain from the clouds. The story is told in the annals of the French academy and may be found in the August number, 1804. The narrative is by one Professor Pontus. In it he gives an account of an instance of millions of frogs which fell in a shower near Toulouse. He states that he himself saw numerous young frogs on the coats of two gentlemen who were out in the shower. Professor Pontus says that he "forthwith repaired to the spot where the storm had burst and found the roads and fields literally alive with young frogs and tadpoles." "In some places," says the professor, "they were three or four deep all over the ground, and the hoofs of the horses and the carriage wheels killed thousands of them."

Klondyke

The Land of Golden Nuggets.

JOSEPH LADUE,

the new Bonanza King of the Klondyke Gold Regions, gives the facts. His book reads like "The Arabian Nights," BUT Joseph Ladue KNOWS whereof he writes. He was the first man on the spot when the first gold was discovered last August, 1896. He located one rich claim and immediately purchased twelve others at a low price before their value was known. He has refused $100,000 for any ONE of these claims, as they are rich with virgin gold nuggets, beyond the dream of avarice. Joseph Ladue then at the mouth of the Klondyke and Yukon Rivers, by erecting the first house in the region in September, one month after the gold was first discovered. He bought 178 acres from the government on the city site where his town lots 150x50 are now selling for $5,000 each.

Established Dawson City

Mr. Ladue was fortunate enough to be successful in his trading post investments to have on hand ample capital to carry out his plans, and there is no man living who is better posted on Alaska and the great North West Territories than Mr. Joseph Ladue. He has just returned from that country to his old home in Schuler Falls, N. Y., where he passed a large portion of his boyhood and early manhood. Mr. Ladue left his home nearly twenty years ago to seek his fortune in the west going first to the Black Hills, where he was successful in gold mining, thence to Arizona and the Pacific coast and finally located in Alaska and the northwest, where he has covered almost the entire country since 1882. Mr. Ladue is a typical pioneer: strong, hardy and resolute—a man of iron as one must needs be to go through the hardships he has and come out with a constitution unbroken and unimpaired at about the age of 43. Mr. Ladue has not only worked his muscles to good advantage to himself with the result of an abundance of the world's goods, far beyond the dreams of men, but he has evidently all this time been closely observing the conditions of that strange country—the Yukon Valley—which has so suddenly become one of the great centers upon which human interest throughout the world is focussed.

When the wonderful stories began to come down from the Yukon country it was naturally concluded that it was at least half exaggeration. That any such amount of gold could be taken in so short a time from a country like that under the most most unfavorable conditions was held to be incredible. But when the great bags of virgin gold began to be poured out upon mint counters in San Francisco under the eyes of the whole world (for modern journalism does this, annihilating time and space) people began to wonder and the wonder grew day by day as the real facts were disclosed, and now people who are well informed as to the facts declare that half the truth has not been told of the golden treasures of the Yukon Valley.

As we have already said, there is no man today alive who knows more about this wonderful country than does Mr. Ladue. What makes his talk of it specially interesting and reliable is the fact that his knowledge of it is practical. It has not been gained from hearsay nor from desultory visits made now and then at certain favorable seasons of the year, but from steady living there through the long summer days and the long winter nights, year in and year out for 15 years, where he now owns the best mining claims on the Klondyke and its tributaries.

In presenting his book to the public we do so knowing that it is by an authority on the subject of which he writes. His first work entitled

MISSING THE MEETING

Another Chance For the Board of Health.

HAS FADED INTO THE PAST

Only One Member, the Clerk and Sanitary Officer Were at City Hall Last Night at the Appointed Time—West End People Had an Objection.

Because there was no quorum, there was no meeting of the board of health last night. The secretary and Member Kauffman were the only people present. Sanitary Officer Burgess had his report prepared, but did not have a chance to read it. It is as follows: Notices served to abate nuisances, 52; scarlet fever cases quarantined, 1; diphtheria cases quarantined, 2; dogs killed and skinned, 7.

There is a probability that the board will hold an extra session next Friday evening.

A committee of men, representing the citizens of Sunnyside, were present and had a grievance to present, but went away looking sad when told there was no meeting.

PLEASING CONTRAST

To Free Coinage Predictions—Colonel Kilbourne's Manufactory Busy.

Colonel James Kilbourne, one of the largest manufacturers of Columbus, and long an enthusiastic advocate of the free coinage of silver, is having troubles of his own in explaining the prosperity now prevailing in his own vast manufactory. The colonel is one of the leading Democrats of the state, and more than once has been favorably mentioned by party leaders as an available candidate for governor. Last year he was delivering himself copiously of free silver argument, and declaring in that financial policy would be found the only salvation of this government. This summer he has gone to Europe. Prosperity made the wheels of his manufactory plant hum so merrily that the colonel was overworked in trying to get out orders, and a rest became necessary.

The advance agent seems to have made a very satisfactory visit to the works in which much of Colonel Kilbourne's capital is invested. Mr. Fred Hubbard, secretary of the Kilbourne & Jacobs company, tells a Columbus newspaper correspondent that business is booming. "We are just swamped," the newspaper man quotes him as saying, "and if we had not accumulated a large surplus stock when times were dull we would not be able to fill our orders. If this rush keeps up, and the indications are that it will, we will be compelled to increase our already extensive facilities."

From this it does not appear that it is the free coinage of silver which was needed to stimulate industry in the works owned by this eminent silver advocate. To put it in the form which probably would suit the free coinage statesmen best, "notwithstanding" this country's sound financial system, the machines in Colonel Kilbourne's manufactory are making merry music.

WAGES ADVANCED.

Employers, Who Can See Prosperity, Make 4,000 Men Happy.

Nearly six months ago the National Tube works of McKeesport, Pa., cut the wages of its employees upon the ground that business conditions would not justify the scale which the company then was paying. A few days ago the company voluntarily restored the wages of its men to the figures paid before the reduction went into effect. When the workmen were informed of the advance in their wages, Manager Horace Crosby said to them:

"While the price of pipe has not increased, there is an improved tone in the business world. We expect prices to advance in the near future, and on the strength of that expectation we feel justified in restoring wages."

Four thousand men are employed by the company, every department of the works is running night and day, and as might naturally be expected, the free silver calamity howler does not find a congenial atmosphere in the city of McKeesport.

FORAKER IN THE CAMPAIGN

Senator Foraker has notified the Republican state executive committee that during the campaign all of his time, except Monday of each week, will be at the command of the committee. This is the best reply to some of the scurrilous Democratic slanders emanating from John R. McLean's newspaper and campaign committee.

Some sensitive plants growing in marshes in the southern states are provided with a substitute for nerves, the antennae, or hairs, on the edges of the leaves being the feelers. When touched, the entire leaf shrinks away from the hand.

SUPPOSE.

Suppose, my dear, that you were I,
And by your side your sweetheart sat.
Suppose you noticed by and by
The distance 'twixt you was too great.
Now tell me, dear, what would you do?
I know, and so do you!

And then, so comfortably placed,
Suppose you only grew aware
That that dear, dainty little waist
Of hers looked very lonely there.
Pray tell me, sooth, what would you do?
I know, and so do you!

Then, having done what I just did,
With not a frown to check or chill,
Suppose her red lips seemed to bid
Defiance to your lordly will?
Oh, tell me, sweet, what would you do?
I know, and so do you!

NOT NEGOTIATING WITH JAPAN.

President Zelaya Wants United States to Build Nicaragua Canal.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—A dispatch to The Herald from Managua, Nicaragua, says: "Your correspondent interviewed President Zelaya as to the statement that Japan is secretly negotiating with the diet of the Greater Republic of Central America for permission to take the Nicaraguan canal project out of the hands of the United States, setting aside the treaty rights of the United States. The president declares that the statement is absolutely false. He says that while he ardently desires to have the canal completed as soon as possible, Japan has never offered to take any hand in the matter. President Zelaya's wish, according to his statement, is for the work to be done either by the United States or a private company.
"Japan has neither minister, consul nor interests in Central America, President Zelaya says. The matter has never been considered in the diet, which met here in open session on Aug. 15."

DAMAGING TO LUETGERT.

Three Women Identify Rings as Mrs. Luetgert's, Found in the Vat.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—Three women have given damaging evidence against the defendant in the Luetgert trial. They positively identified the rings found in the vat as being the property of Mrs. Luetgert and said that they had seen them on her hands, and one of them had talked with her about the rings at one time and so felt sure that the rings found in the vat and those she saw on the fingers of Mrs. Luetgert were the same.

The defense made a desperate effort to break down the evidence of the three women, but they all stuck to their stories and swore that the rings were those which the wife of the sausage-maker had worn before she disappeared.

MANY HUNTING PEARLS.

Said to Be Plentiful in Lakes in St. Francis (Ark.) River Bottoms.

HELENA, Ark., Sept. 4.—The pearl hunting industry, which has been exciting the whole country, is spreading all over this end of the state. The St. Francis river from the mouth of the river to Jeffersonville is lined with people and negroes, all engaged in unearthing and prying open the richly laden mussel shells.

One young man brought a small bottle of pearls to Helena, taken from Phillips bayou, a tributary of the St. Francis. They are darker in color than the ordinary pearls of commerce, but are handsomer shaped and of good size. All of the chain of lakes, in the hitherto impenetrable St. Francis river bottoms, are full of these pearl-bearing mussels.

SETH LOW ACCEPTS.

Thinks It's the Voice of Greater New York People Calling.

NORTHEAST HARBOR, Me., Sept. 4.—Seth Low has signified his acceptance of the nomination as mayor of Greater New York tendered him by the borough committees of the Citizens' union.

Mr. Low said that he thought his nomination not a personal tribute, but that it "means that the people of the city, as they contemplate all that is at stake, are deeply moved by the desire that, when the great city begins its new career, it shall do so with a mandate from the voters to the officials of the city that the welfare of the city, not of any party, is to be their first concern. For that principle I am known to stand; for it I shall contend in the coming campaign with such allies as time may bring; but for it I shall stand by my friends few or many. Because the Citizens' union stands for this principle, and because I am in sympathy with its general purpose, I shall gladly accept its nomination, and I shall welcome all support from any quarter that recognizes the position that I occupy."

SETH LOW ACCEPTS.

Thinks It's "the Voice of Greater New York People Calling."

NORTHEAST HARBOR, Me., Sept. 4.—Seth Low has signified his acceptance of the nomination as mayor of Greater New York tendered him by the borough committees of the Citizens' union.

Mr. Low said that he thought his nomination not a personal tribute, but that it "means that the people of the city, as they contemplate all that is at stake, are deeply moved by the desire that, when the great city begins its new career, it shall do so with a mandate from the voters to the officials of the city that the welfare of the city, not of any party, is to be their first concern. For that principle I am known to stand; for it I shall contend in the coming campaign with such allies as time may bring; but for it I shall stand be my friends few or many. Because the Citizens' union stands for this principle, and because I am in sympathy with its general purpose, I shall gladly accept its nomination, and I shall welcome all support from any quarter that recognizes the position that I occupy."
